NEWS BRIEFS

Aggie grad contends for student teaching award

Michael Loncaric, a Texas A&M technical education graduate student, will find out this spring if he is the winner of the Student Teacher of the Year Award.

The award is given by the Texas Directors of Field Experience, an organization of student teaching program directors from Texas and will be announced in the spring.

Loncaric began his A&M career as a civil engineer with a ROTC air force scholarship and a member of the Corps of Cadets, but changed his mind after taking a 200-level history class his sophomore year.

"I got out of civil engineering and didn't know what I wanted to do," he said. "I took the history class and loved it. Then decided I would give teaching a try."

Loncaric came back to A&M this fall to complete his master's degree and works as a teaching assistant for a technical education class.

Summer's last days bring bone-chilling cold fronts

LUBBOCK (AP) — West Texans bundled up Wednesday and braced for a record-snapping cold front expected to drop temperatures into the mid-30s by Friday, the last day of summer.

This cool snap — a precursor to a stronger cold front expected in the Texas Panhandle by Thursday — held noontime temperatures to 56 degrees in Amarillo. Harlingen hit 92.

NWS meteorologist Doug Crowley expected temperatures in Amarillo to dip as low as the mid-30s Friday morning. The record for that date is 40 degrees, set in 1951 and '72, he said.
