O.J. can't regain sports status

Well, the nation has finally sighed a breath of relief now that the trial of the century is over. No matter what your opinion is on the verdict, most of the public believes that Simpson's life will never be the same.

He will always be known as the "wife beater" and/or "the killer." Pete Rose has the same problem, although not as severe. Instead of being the most prolific hitter in baseball, Rose is known as the man who bet on baseball. While Simpson's situation is different because he is not a convicted felon, it runs along the same lines. Despite Simpson's talents, he will never be remembered solely for his athletic and broadcasting abilities. What's even worse is that even if Simpson tried to get his old job back at NBC, the executives probably wouldn't even would be able to find another job. Simpson's only sin was that he was a great running back in a society that idolizes and immortalizes athletes. In addition to Simpson not being able to find a broadcasting job, his induction into the Hall of Fame will be forever tainted. Just a few months ago, someone stole his bust from Canton. He will no longer be O.J., the man who rushed for 2,003 yards in 1973, but instead, O.J., Kato Kaelin's housemate. It is a sad state of affairs when an individual cannot carry on his life after being acquitted of a crime. O.J. should be able to re-enter society just like every other ordinary person that has been acquitted by the criminal justice system. Just because he was a celebrity before this all began does not mean that it should be tougher for him to regain his reputation as one of the best running backs in NFL history.

32 O.J. SIMPSON

Jones, Switzer fight different battles as Cowboys prepare for Packers

Switzer must prepare to not play Troy Aikman, who is injured.

Jones and other potential sponsors, such as American Express, he said. "I think there's some potential for positive results (from the meeting) as opposed to going full bore into heavy countersuits and heavy litigation," said Jones as his Nike logo lapel pin glistened in the camera lights. "I think there's enough to be gained to make me spend the energy and for Sunday's matchup against the Green Bay Packers without Sanders or Aikman against the league's No. 1 defensive unit. "It's scary to look at them and see how physical and strong and talented they are," he said. "To have dominated them the way we did in the playoff game (35-9) and to look at what they've accomplished this year, statistically it's not the same football team, but it is. It's the same players."

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Barry Switzer and Jerry Jones spent Tuesday preparing the Dallas Cowboys for two very different battles. Coach Switzer and his staff are figuring out a way to crack Green Bay's staunch defensive front without star quarterback Troy Aikman, who suffered a strained right calf in Sunday's 27-23 loss at Washington. Jones, speaking at his regular midday news conference, said he was leaving later in the day for a meeting with NFL officials at an undisclosed place and time to continue discussions concerning the league's $300 million lawsuit against the club. Jones, the Cowboys' owner, said the league got its first glimpse at the actual deals he has fashioned between Texas Stadium and sponsors such as Nike, Pepsi-Cola and Dr Pepper after meetings last week. He has maintained communications with other owners and the NFL throughout the weekend. The federal lawsuit has not impeded negotiations between travel time to have the meeting." He said the four-hour session involving him and a group of owners last week was "constructive," but nothing positive came of it. Jones also said he believes the $35 million contract of cornerback Deion Sanders, who is recovering from ankle surgery, will be approved by the league without any alterations. Meanwhile, Switzer and his staff must draw up his game plan start in place of Aikman, who hopes to be ready the following Sunday at San Diego. Backing up Wilson will be Jason Garrett, who started the Cowboys' 42-31 victory over Packers last Thanksgiving. "You still have to deal with Michael Irvin, their offensive line, Jay Novacek and of course Emmitt Smith. Your playing the same crew all the time," Green Bay coach Holmgren said.
