A&M tunes up for run in non-SWC game

Evan Zimmerman, The Battalion

Seniors Suzy Wentze and Andrea Williams guard the net against Utah.

The five Lady Aggie seniors will be honored tonight.

By Tom Day
THE BATTALION

Following exhausting road trips to Hawaii and Utah, the Lady Aggie Volleyball Team returned home Sunday tired but satisfied.

After suffering a two-match sweep to the University of Hawaii 10 days ago, the road-weary Aggies put together two, five-game comeback victories over No. 23 Brigham Young University and unranked Utah last weekend.

Senior setter Suzy Wentze said the team's rigorous travel schedule had a major influence on the team's play.

"Going to Hawaii tired us out a little bit, so we felt we didn't play up to our full potential this weekend," senior setter Suzy Wentze said. "In the majority of the games we played, we were down 11-5 or 11-2 but, we came back and won the game."

A&M Head Coach Laurie Corbelli said the team's five-game victories were valuable confidence builders.

"I was extremely proud of their comebacks," Corbelli said. "To be down like that and to fight back was something we haven't been able to accomplish in the past. It was definitely a highlight of our season, in that respect."

Unfortunately, there is no rest for the weary as A&M returns to the spotlight tonight. The 17-ranked Lady Aggies (17-4) will take on the the University of Texas-Arlington in their last home match of the regular season at the Rollie White Coliseum at 7 p.m.

"(Fatigue) may be a factor," Corbelli said. "We've been on back-to-back road trips and our play has suffered a little bit because of that."

"Hopefully we'll get the opportunity to test out some things we're really focusing on in practice with our blocking and individual defensive play."

UTA (12-14), enters the contest on a bit of a roll, having won four of their last five matches. The Mavericks are led by Heather Hoy and Dawn Foley. Hoy leads UTA with 325 kills and a .236 hitting percentage, while Foley has contributed 887 assists.

"They're a young team building a program, but they have experienced coaches," Corbelli said. "They have size in the middle and some versatility at the outside hitting position."

Wentze, who surpassed the 5,000 career assists plateau against BYU, said the Lady Aggies should be well prepared to deal with the Mavericks' blocking game.

"They have a big block," Wentze said. "But we faced BYU this weekend, and they have the No. 1 block in the nation, so I think we're ready."

Tonight's contest will also be a special occasion for three A&M seniors playing their final home match. Wentze and outside hitters Andrea Williams and Dana Santleben will be honored in a pregame ceremony.

LAST WEEK
to pick up your Aggieland Yearbook & Campus Directory at English Annex

1995 Aggieland
