NEWS BRIEFS

Law enforcement officials host women's safety class

Bryan-College Station, Brazos County and Texas A&M law enforcement officials are presenting the ninth semi-annual Women's Safety Awareness and Self-Defense Class. The class is at 6:30 p.m. at the St. Joseph Parish Center in Bryan.
All women over the age of 12 are invited to attend. The class is free, and reservations can be made by contacting the Brazos County Rape Crisis Center at 268-7273.

Hillel Foundation to host special sabbath service

The Texas A&M Hillel Foundation and Congregation Beth Shalom of Bryan will hold a special sabbath service at the Hillel Foundation on George Bush Drive in memory of the late Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin of Israel tonight at 8 p.m.
The service will be preceded by a candlelight march beginning at Rudder Fountain at 7:15 p.m.

Hong Kong man gives $100 million to Princeton

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Gordon Y.S. Wu, who got through Princeton University with "gentleman's C's" and went on to become one of Hong Kong's richest developers, is donating $100 million to his alma mater.
The donation, which goes toward Princeton's engineering school, is the largest ever for the Ivy League university and one of the biggest in the history of U.S. education.

Wu, whose Hopewell Holdings Ltd. has vast interests in China and Southeast Asia, received his bachelor's degree in civil engineering in 1958. Wu said he decided in his junior year that he would make a million dollars, his mediocre grades notwithstanding.
He has already given more than $12 million to Princeton, where two of his four children have gone to school.

Expert says Kevorkian's patient was terminally ill

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (AP) — The latest person to die in Jack Kevorkian's presence was indeed terminally ill, an outside expert said Thursday as questions arose over whether the man known as Doctor Death had moved too fast this time.
While Kevorkian's lawyer said the breast cancer that spread through Patricia Cashman's body was crumbling her bones, a preliminary autopsy found no visible traces of the disease.
At the request of The Associated Press, Dr. Jeffrey Forman, vice chairman of radiology at Wayne State University School of Medicine, reviewed some of Cashman's medical records, which were provided by Kevorkian's lawyer.
Cashman did have bone cancer, but it wouldn't necessarily have been detected during a routine autopsy, Forman said.

this type of letter and throw it away and don't tell anyone about it."
These types of swindlers prey off of people's confidence," Kretzschmar said, "by trying to make offers so appealing that they are difficult to resist."
"We don't want people to fall prey to these scheme artists. If it sounds too good to be true, it probably is — it's that old saying."
Kretzschmar said it is important for everyone to know this sort of scam is occurring at A&M as well as nationwide and asked that victims step forward.
"One of the reasons we want people to know about this is that we want them to be aware that this is happening," he said. "If you have been contacted, please contact UPD — Lt. Will Scott, in particular — and let us know about it."
"We want to keep people from being swindled."

organization's, as well as the student body's, desire to support A&M veterans.
"These are the two most important flags because they have meaning to veterans of any war," he said.
The Texas flag, which flew over the Texas House of Representatives in Austin, was purchased with Texas A&M Veteran's funds from State Rep. Steve Ogden of Bryan, Zarco said. The American flag, he said, was donated anonymously.
Zarco said four service flags representing the army, navy, air force and marine corps will also be hung in the MSC next spring during Military Weekend.
Jim Reynolds, MSC director, said the MSC Council approved adding the flags in September as present resolutions and vote on policies.

Chrisma Jackson, Model United Nations Committee vice chair of external affairs, said many of the delegates have lived in the countries they choose to represent, are international students or have done extensive research about their chosen countries.
"Most of the delegates and the resolutions are definitely serious," Jackson said. "Some of Criminal Investigation Division, has been investigating a case at A&M and said none of the contacted A&M faculty gave the schemers the information they needed.

Unfortunately, other universities have not been so lucky as several employees were taken by the scheme.
"Some people look at the letters and say, 'Wow, this looks like a great deal!' and they go out the information," Scott said. "Before they know it, their accounts are drained."
"Obviously, anyone who receives a letter like this should not respond to it."
Scott said the letters are being referred to the Houston branch of the Secret Service, where they undergo further investigation.
Anyone who is approached in this manner should report immediately to the University Police Department who will then notify the proper investigating officials.

part of their efforts to enhance the memorial aspect of the MSC.
"Adding the flags of our state and nation carries out the mission of the memorial in the MSC," Reynolds said. "The council felt it was quite appropriate because the memorial is for Aggies who have lost their lives."
The Corps unit flags that have traditionally hung in the MSC were part of the interior design of the MSC, Reynolds said. Leaving out the state and national flags has been a "gross oversight" on the part of the MSC, he said.
Reynolds said the state, national and military service flags, which will hang on the north wall of the Flagroom, will complement the Corps unit flags that are already in place.
"This is a way of representing all of the Aggies who served and are serving in the armed forces," Reynolds said.

them are for fun, like proposing to bomb someone, but most of them are serious."
Some delegates even take a class at their respective colleges to prepare for the Model United Nations conferences, which are held throughout the United States.
Jackson said the conference provide delegates with a realistic experience of how foreign policy is made.
"You get experience with international cultures," Jackson said. "You get to see parliamentary procedures. You get to see how the United Nations actually works."
