Braves' Maddux nabs unanimous Cy Young

NEW YORK (AP) — For Greg Maddux, winning the Cy Young Award — even unanimously — is just another part of his routine.

"We might have a little party tomorrow night or something," he said Monday after capturing his fourth consecutive NL Cy Young, his second straight by a shutout vote. "After winning the World Series, we're pretty much parried out."

Maddux, at 29 perhaps not even halfway through his career, continued to put up numbers that can be compared only with baseball's greats.

Steve Carlton is the only other pitcher to win four Cy Youngs. He did it for Philadelphia in 1972, 1977, 1980 and 1982.

Michigan tabs Carr as permanent head coach

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Lloyd Carr, the interim coach who has guided Michigan to an 8-2 record and a No. 12 ranking, was hired today as the Wolverines' permanent football coach today.

Athletic director Joe Roberson, who made the announcement, did not reveal terms of the contract.

Carr was given the job last spring after Gary Moeller was forced to resign following a drunken incident in a suburban Detroit restaurant.

Under Carr, the Wolverines opened the season by defeating Virginia 18-17 in the Pigskin Classic on Scott Dreisbach's 15-yard touchdown pass to Mercury Hayes on the last play.

Newcomers shine in exhibition loss

The Aggie Basketball Team lost to the Melbourne Magic, 88-84.

They may be young, but they looked pretty good.

The Texas A&M Men's Basketball Team took on the Melbourne Magic in front of 1,832 fans at G. Rollie White Coliseum last night, in its first exhibition game of the season. Although the Magic defeated A&M 88-84, the Aggies showed that despite the loss of four of last year's starters, they will be a force to be reckoned with this year.

"I am pleased with the game," A&M Head Coach Tony Barone said. "I have no complaints. Obviously I wanted to win, but Stricker and Ockey are out."

Freshmen center Brad Stricker had ankle surgery on Friday for bone chips and is expected to be out for 2-8 weeks. Freshman forward Joel Ockey has a sprained ankle and is expected to be out for 4-5 days.

The Aggies came out strong in the first half. After falling behind 15-18, A&M went on a 25-5 run to bring the score to 35-23. Leading the way for the Aggies was junior transfer Derrick Hart who made 5-of-7 three-point shots and led the team with 19 points in the first half.

Hart finished the game with 27 points and led the team with seven three-pointers.

"It was a big challenge to step up against veteran players," Hart said. "It made me step up my game, especially on defense."

Leading the way for the Magic were former college players Travis Mays and Billy McCaffrey.

Mays played for the University of Texas from 1986-1990 and went on to play for the Sacramento Kings for a year and the Atlanta Hawks for three. McCaffrey played on Duke University's national championship team in 1991 before transferring to Vanderbilt where he played from 1992-1994 and was an All-American.

"They played good against Mays and McCaffrey and a decent job in containing them," Barone said. "But I'm disappointed with the inside defense."

Mays led the Magic with 21 points and made 3-of-5 three-pointers. McCaffrey led the team with 12 assists and had 13 points.

The Aggies led at halftime 50-39, but in the second half A&M showed signs of fatigue. It was obvious as A&M's shooting percentage fell from .655 in the first half to .353 in the second half.

A&M also committed 11 turnovers in the second half.

"The most glaring problem was physical conditioning," Barone said. "You get into basketball game shape by playing games. Now the players understand what it takes to be in game shape."

Sophomore guard Kyle Kessel is the only returning starter from last year's team and this year's team is comprised of underclassmen and two junior transfer players. Team chemistry was something that the Aggies were worried about but in the first half A&M seemed to not have a problem.

"In the first half, we clicked and played really well," Kessel said. "The team chemistry was good. In the second half we just kind of stood around and weren't sure what to do. It will just take time. It was just jitters because it was the first game. Our legs were tired in the second half, but we'll be all right."

Freshman guard Tracey Anderson turned in the second-best performance of the team with 19 points. Anderson said the team is young they still have a lot to learn but is confident that the team will develop the chemistry needed to be competitive in the 1996 season.

"We still have a lot to learn," Anderson said. "This is the first time we have played against veterans and we have a lot of work to do. We need to work on our offensive execution and work on defense."

"Our chemistry is good when we are fresh. We are in decent shape, but not in game shape."

The Aggies next exhibition game will be on Nov. 20 against Conoco at G. Rollie White Coliseum at 7 p.m.

Sports, politics and depression don't mix

I'm basically a big ball of pent-up frustration and anger. The sweet, charming disposition you've fallen in love with is merely a front — a well-performed act that masks the young version of Archie Bunker that I really am.

What's got me so crotchety? What's rubbin' me raw?: Sports, politics and pretty much life in general. Seeing as I have about 14 inches of space to fill, I'm going to take this opportunity to air out some things.

Texas Stadium without Steve Young, without fullback William Floyd, without Deion Sanders, and they still pound the *%$# out the Cowboys.

It was like reliving the horror of last season's NFC Championship all over again.

The Dallas defense played like it was recovering from a pregame meal at a bad Mexican restaurant, and the lack of a Cowboy pass rush made backup 49er quarterback Elvis Grbac look like a taller, goofier version of Joe Montana.

The whole mess leaves me with one lingering question. What kind of parents have the guts to name their kid Elvis?

I don't fault citizens of Cleveland for wanting to string up Browns owner Art Modell for moving their team to Baltimore.

So what if Cleveland Municipal Stadium is a wreck? So what if it doesn't have enough luxury boxes? It's got personality, damn it.

Modell says he's just not making enough money in Cleveland. It seems he can't turn a profit or compete with other teams in the free-agency market despite hauling in a few hundred million a year.

Three words of advice, Art — fire your accountant.

For all of you Houston Oilers fans distraught over your team's defection to Nashville, I say, "Get over it and rejoice!" With one shot you're getting rid of the three major scourges of your city: a mediocre football team that has broken your collective heart year after year, a huge putz in owner Bud Adams and Adams' bad hairpiece.

Look on the bright side, you still have the Rockets, Astroworld and crowded freeways full of the world's stupidest drivers.

So Colin Powell proved to be a big tease in deciding not to seek nomination for president from either party. I don't blame him, but I'm just disappointed.

Like most people, I vote for the candidate who I think is the coolest, most honorable guy rather than voting along party lines. With Powell gone, who's left to vote for in '96?

Bob Dole? He was the guy under Darth Vader's helmet in all three Star Wars movies. Phil Gramm? He likes for everyone to believe he's from Texas, but he's really from Georgia.

Bill Clinton? He reminds me of the guy who volunteers to help you move but shows up late and mysteriously disappears when the sleeper sofa has to go up to the third floor.
