Dole campaign blasts Gramm

□ The senator has been absent 23 times when the Senate was voting on "Contract With America" items.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican presidential hopeful Phil Gramm talks a good game in support of the GOP's "Contract With America," but he's missing many Senate votes dealing with the party's agenda, rival Bob Dole's campaign charged Tuesday.

"Baloney," responded Gramm's Senate press secretary. The Dole campaign issued a news release pointing out that Gramm was campaigning Monday in Florida even as the Senate was considering "four important Senate votes in the historic budget battle between the Republican Congress and Bill Clinton."

The White House and Republican-led Congress are locked in budget brinkmanship that has resulted in a partial government shutdown. Dole, as Senate majority leader, has been in the thick of the rancorous negotiations with the White House over the impasse.

Gramm press secretary Larry Neal said the Texan would have returned to Washington from Florida had his vote been required. A stopgap spending bill allowing the government to keep functioning pending approval of all 13 appropriations bills was passed by voice vote, Neal noted. He called the vote a "pro forma mechanism" since it was obvious President Clinton was going to veto the measure, which he did Monday night.

The votes Gramm missed Monday were all non-binding resolutions that the Senate sends to clarify its position as House and Senate conferees meet. Even more, the motions were offered by Democrats who paraded to the floor to attack the Republican agenda, Neal said.

"Let me just say if Bob Dole can't keep Democrats from taking over the Senate floor to whine and complain, maybe should turn over the job of publican leader to somebody can handle it," Neal said.

Apart from Monday's votes, the Dole campaign Gram had also been absent 22 other occasions when Senate was voting on "Contract With America" items. Neal said Gramm has missed only 10 percent of votes since began campaigning.

Gramm repeatedly has dled Dole over the "Contract With America," accusing Kansas competitor of being than enamored of the agenda drawn up last year by Speaker Newt Gingrich and er House GOP leaders.

On Tuesday, Dole's campaign jabbed back. "The clear difference is while Bob Dole is trying to make the Republican solution a reality, Phil Gramm is satisfied with using it as a campaign ploy," the campaign said.

Retorted Neal: "The guy has walked away from the 'Contract With America' is Bob Dole."
