something they're going to let just anybody do."

Considering that more than 50,000 people attended Bonfire, Wiatt said there were relatively few problems during the event.

"[During Bonfire] we made 19 arrests, primarily for public intoxication," Wiatt said. "We gave out 104 citations, primarily for minors in possession of alcohol."

Three students were taken to the hospital for alcohol poisoning.

Early Sunday morning, police responded to a fight at an Alpha Phi Alpha party in the MSC.

Wiatt said an officer was injured, car windows were damaged and someone was assaulted with a tire iron.

"It took us about an hour to get everything controlled," he said.

David Washington, Alpha Phi Alpha special events chair and a senior political science major, said fraternity members helped police control the crowd.

"Our advisers were on hand, and we took all the precautions we needed to take," Washington said. "It wasn't due to poor planning. It wasn't due to bad hosting. It was due to bad guests."

"At no time was there a mob of people getting into it," he said. "The majority of the guests were very well behaved."

One of this weekend's events, Elephant Walk, occurred without any major hitches.

John Jordan, Elephant Walk public relations chair and a senior marketing major, said the junior and senior classes respected "O' Army" tradition and kept the event clean.

"Elephant Walk was pretty much a tremendous success," Jordan said. "You couldn't really hope for things to go any smoother ... or for the classes to have any more fun."

president for finance and administration position was split into two positions.

Bowen, in a statement released earlier this month, said the reorganization "marks a return to a structure that Texas A&M has successfully used in the past."

"I believe it provides for an additional level of administrative accountability and financial control," he said.

Gaston will oversee several University operations, including human resources, the Physical Facilities and Planning, food services and the University Police Department.

Krumm will be responsible for the fiscal office, budgeting, purchasing services and contract administration.

Gaston was unavailable for comment, but Krumm said that he was looking forward to his new job.

"I am very pleased and proud," Krumm said. "Texas A&M is a great institution. I enjoy working with the faculty and students here so much ... I've got a lot of people to meet."

At the Board of Regents meeting, Mary Nan West, Board chairman, said the Regents support Bowen's appointments.

"I have not met (Krumm) yet, but I have read his resume, and he seems to be an outstanding individual," West said. "Dr. Gaston, of course, has been with the University for a long time."

Gaston will assume his duties immediately, performing Krumm's duties too until Krumm arrives in College Station in early 1996.

DEMOLITION

of plans to move future kinesiology classes to the new Student Recreational Center.

John Lindsey, chairman of the Board's facilities and planning committee, said renovations were discussed, but considered impractical.

"Some of the members of the Old Main Society wanted to renovate these buildings," Lindsey said. "But there really is no more need for DeWare if we were to restore it to the same thing it was used for before — basketball and racquetball."

Members of Old Main Society suggested renovating DeWare and using it for dances and banquets.

"We pointed out that those needs will already be met with the new special events center (Reed Arena), plus with the George Bush Presidential Library and of course, the Sports Rec building," Lindsey said.

University officials have plans for the open space that will be left by DeWare's demolition.

"When it is torn down," Lindsey said, "it will become green space for a 'living room' next to Kyle Field and across from the Memorial Student Center."

Brian Mason, Old Main Society chairman and a senior anthropology major, said he is not satisfied with the Regents' decision.

"We had a lot of questions we wanted answers to," Mason said. "It seemed like no matter what, the buildings would be torn down."

Mason said if better care had been taken of the structures, they would have been salvageable. The next step in the demolition process, bid developments, will take place next spring. The actual demolition is scheduled to begin next summer.
