Sega Ags take title, 136-113

□ The Virtual Ags completed a 12-0 season with the strange win.

It was the best of games, yet strangely enough, it was the worst of games.

The Virtual Aggies, the No. 2 team in the nation, marched into Sun Devil Stadium Thursday afternoon and defeated the No. 1 Nebraska Cornhuskers in a classic matchup.

That's the good news. The bad part was that the game was played under highly suspect circumstances. A workers' strike saw all stadium personnel and officials boycott the game, forcing the Aggies and Cornhuskers to use officials from their own universities to plug in the holes.

The result, a game that lasted 6-and-1/2 hours and was won by the Aggies, 136-113.

Obviously, records that had stood forever were broken, but in the end, the Maroon and White had its first championship since 1939.

Sports Information Director Alan Cannon was named umpire for the game, while Nebraska SID personnel were made the field and side judges.

Honorary team captains John David Crow and Mike Rozier were jointly put in charge of working the game and play clocks — and the two bickered throughout the game, eventually having to be separated by players from their respective alma maters.

However, the real battle, as always, was on the field. And the Aggies proved they had the best talent in the country — just like everyone had figured in the pre-season.

In this rarest of shootouts, A&M had to dig deep into its cavernous offensive arsenal, using every weapon possible to combat Tom Osborne's defending national champions.

Senior quarterback Corey Pullig, as usual, was the steady hand for the Aggies, throwing for an almost-obscure 1,098 yards and connecting on 13 touchdown passes.

Eleven of those touchdowns went to the stunning speedster Danny McCray, who caught 21 passes for 708 yards. All day long, the Cornhuskers never had an answer for McCray, who is merely a junior this season.

When the Aggies were not exposing oversights in the Nebraska secondary, they were tearing holes in the suddenly porous Cornhusker front four.

Leland McElroy, perhaps the greatest player of all time in Sega Football, capped his Heisman Trophy season with the single-greatest rushing performance of all time.

McElroy rushed 42 times for 572 yards, a 13.6 yards-per-carry average, and scored four touchdowns.

Despite Pullig and McCray's magnificence, McElroy was named Most Valuable Player of the Fiesta Bowl, for it was he that dug the Aggies out of an early 14-0 hole.

Special thanks to David Winder for the use of his Sega.

Texas A&M defenders David Maxwell and Donovan Greer celebrate the final gun as the Virtual Ags defeat Nebraska at the Cyber-Fiesta Bowl.
