Calvin Davis enjoyed a career game.

Staff and Wire Reports

Texas Christian Horned Frogs outscored the Texas A&M Men's Basketball Team 7-2 in the final 1:52 of the game and defeated the Aggies 80-76 Wednesday night.

The loss dropped A&M to 9-9 overall and 1-5 in Southwest Conference play this year.

The loss took away from a career performance from A&M freshman forward Calvin Davis. In just 29 minutes of play, Davis scored a team-high 21 points and grabbed 13 rebounds, including seven off the

In addition, Davis blocked six shots, a season-high for A&M and was the most by and Aggie since David Harris rejected nine Baylor Bear shots in a game in 1990.

Late run propels Horned Frogs

Down 73-70 with 1:01 left in the game, Davis brought the Aggies back with two foul shots and a slam dunk following a Kyle Kessel miss to give A&M a 74-73 lead with 49 seconds left in the game.

But the Frogs came back with a free throw by guard Juan Bragg and a 15-foot jumper from Saipele Tuialii to give TCU a five-point bulge with just eight seconds remaining in the game.

In addition to Davis' fine performance, the Aggies were led by junior forward Gar nottingham, who appeared fu ly recovered from a groin in jury earlier in the year. Nottingham recorded his third double-double of the season with a career-high 20 points and 11 rebounds. Sophomore guard Kyle Kessel tied his season high with 10 assists, and forwards Dario Quesada and Tracey Anderson each added 10 points.

The Horned Frogs were led by guard Jeff Jacobs, who nailed 6-of-10 shots from the field en route to 21 points and six rebounds.

Also posting big numbers for the Frogs was guard Anthony Burks who canned 3-of 5 three-pointers and finished the game with 16 points, seven assists and two steals.

The Frogs led 44-38 at half-time, but A&M rallied in the second half on the strength of a 12-5 second half run, capped off by a layup by Nottingham to give A&M a 50-49 lead with 15:50 left in the game.

But the Frogs regrouped and took the game at the Daniel-Meyer Coliseum before a crowd of 4,783.

So by the time I'm done with my warm-up, I'm already winded with a sharp pain in my side and can barely get out a half-hearted "here" when the instructor calls roll while we stretch.

hope to rebound from Wednesday's loss against TCU.

Texas A&M junior forward Tracey Anderson and his teammates will

Then there are the ultimate sources of humiliation — the timed runs. We had our first one on Monday. Luckily, this one wasn't for a grade, it was just so that we could "see where we're at" before we have to run it for a grade.

I wanted to tell my instructor that I didn't need to run it because I could tell her where I'm at — last place. I ran it anyway, a timed mile that I was supposed to run in seven minutes. Needless to say, my time exceeded, greatly exceeded actually, seven minutes. That wasn't the humiliating part though. What was humiliating about this run was the fact that the instructor wanted to make some announcements afterwards. So as I finished my mile, in last place as I predicted, the rest of the class was already done and standing around the finish line watching me as I half-ran, half-dragged myself across the finish and listened to the instructors' announcements between blackouts.

My strength training class is another story. There are about 40 guys and eight girls. Normally, I would like those odds; however, I doubt that any guy would be impressed with my weight-training prowess. You can't blame a girl for trying though.

Cory Willis, THE BATTALION N

Anyway, we are in the process of doing skills tests in this class. These tests include pull-ups, dips, a two-minute sit-up test, bench press and leg press. Out of a possible 30 points for this skills test, I have accumulated 4 (That's without bench press and leg press) and have had the instructor say to me "Miss Lisa, we're going to have to work on you." Thank God for pass/fail.

I know I'm not the only one who feels this way. My sister just got out of a tap dance kinesiology class that brought her the same humiliation, and I've had friends in snow skiing and sailing share with me their stories of humiliation as well.

So if learning how to deal with humiliation is what I am supposed to be getting out of my kinesiology classes than it's good to know that it's money well spent, plus, I'm actually starting to get in shape along the way.

Who knows, by the end of the semester I might actually be able to run a mile in seven minutes. In the meantime, if you're driving through campus and see a group of people running and there's one person about 200 yards behind the rest, honk and wave, it's probably me!

Tragedy in Indiana: One player killed, five injured as basketball team's van crashes
