Dave House, THE BATTALION

Will Matthews, University President Ray Bowen's replacement for a day, kicks back and takes a break from all of the commotion involved during his day as Texas A&M president.

Bowen

he said. "But a lot of students looked really shocked to see me."

"The whole day was really a wonderful diversion for me, and I also got to see what it was like to actually sit in these classrooms."

While Bowen was finding out what it was like to be a student again, Matthews was getting a firsthand look at managing a major university.

"The presidential staff meeting in the morning was a big eye opener," he said. "This presidency is not just about making a series of appointments. You really have to think things through and do a lot of decision making."

"Even though the day was not as busy as usual, it gave me a great idea of the time management involved. There just wasn't a free second to spare."

Bowen said he looks forward to participating in the event in future years.

"When I heard of the idea, I thought it sounded great, and I wanted to do it right away," he said. "I am very willing to do something like this again. In fact, it's easy on me to take a break in the middle of the week."

Kelly Hammack, a senior psychology major and United Way Pack member, said the project had mixed results.

"We didn't make quite as much money as we had hoped for," she said. "But we did get a lot of publicity. We plan to do this every year in the future."

Unabomber

Grotz confirmed that agents were investigating whether Kaczynski had traveled to the Sacramento area.

The New York Times reported Monday that federal agents had uncovered hotel records placing Kaczynski in Sacramento on the same days that some of the Unabomber's package bombs were mailed from the city.

The report was attributed to unnamed federal officials.

The last four bombs from the Unabomber were mailed from Northern California: Two bombs postmarked in Sacramento exploded in June 1993, wounding one person in San Francisco and another at Yale University in New Haven, Conn.

A bomb mailed from San Francisco in 1994 killed a New Jersey advertising executive. And a fourth bomb postmarked in Oakland, Calif., exploded April 24, 1995, killing a timber industry lobbyist in Sacramento.

Years earlier, on Dec. 11, 1985, a man was killed by a bomb he found near his computer rental store in Sacramento.

Federal investigators tracking Kaczynski's movements are trying to learn how the former math professor, who had no visible means of support, could get to other states where the Unabomber's bombs were mailed or left.

They reportedly are checking whether he rode buses to those states; two bus line employees in Montana told the AP that Kaczynski was a passenger numerous times.

Kaczynski, 53, was taken into custody at his cabin near Lincoln, Mont., on Wednesday and is being held without bail in a Helena jail. He has been charged in federal court with possession of bomb-making materials.

The charge is intended to keep Kaczynski in custody while investigators build a case against him for the Unabomber attacks that killed three people and injured 23 in nine states over the past 18 years.

Hensley said FBI agents approached him in March and showed him Kaczynski's photo.

"I recognized him right away," he said. Hensley described Kaczynski as "quiet and intelligent."

Tony Bisceglie, the Washington lawyer who acted as an intermediary between David Kaczynski and the FBI, said he would hold a news conference at 10 a.m. Monday in Washington, D.C. The Kaczynski family would not attend the news conference and will speak with reporters, he said.

U.S. attorneys from California, New Jersey, Montana and Utah were scheduled to meet Monday in Washington, D.C., to discuss where to hold the Unabomber trial.

The Sacramento Bee has reported that officials are leaning toward Sacramento as the site because two of the killings were there.

Former attorney general Dick Thornburgh said it is unlikely the case would be tried in state court, as California Gov. Pete Wilson has requested.

"The track record of criminal cases in the federal court is somewhat better than it is in most state courts, and I think the department and the attorney general will be much more comfortable having it tried in federal court," Thornburgh said Sunday on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley."

Thornburgh said Monday's meeting will focus on whether Kaczynski should be charged with most or all of the Unabomber's crimes.
