apartment home. Bill Boyett, whose family owns several Northgate properties, said the building was completed in 1928 and was the city's first apartment complex.

Boyett said the building, nicknamed the "Alamo," housed 12 units and was supervised by a housemother.

Don Ganter, owner of the Dixie Chicken, said bottle cap alley developed from a troublesome mud hole. Ganter said the building's owners would not allow him to put gravel in the alley, so he poured each day's bottle caps there to remedy the problem.

It took about two years for the alley to be completely covered with bottle caps, and he continues to pour caps on the ground every day. He said a popular bookstore once occupied what is now part of the Dixie Chicken.

"The rattlesnakes (caged near some of the bar's pool tables) now occupy the entrance to the old Loupot's bookstore," he said.

The portion of the Dixie Chicken that Loupot's once occupied, he said, was a rock-n-roll bar called Miranda's before it was annexed by the Dixie Chicken in 1979.

Ganter said Stevie Ray Vaughn once played at Miranda's.

The building that Loupot's now occupies was once a pharmacy, and the second floor was a pool hall that later included adult arcades and video machines.

Luke Patranella and Charlie Opersteyn once owned a popular grocery store called Luke and Charlie's where the Texas Aggie Book Store is now located. Once Patranella died, the grocery store was simply known as Charlie's.

We didn't think we could make it any easier to surf the Net.

Today, more students are using Macintosh computers to share ideas on the Internet than any other computer. No small wonder, either. Because with a Macintosh there are no complicated commands needed to get up and surfing on the Net. So in a matter of minutes you can be on-line accessing the exciting new universe of the Internet. (Not to mention prospective employers.) And right now, buying a Mac is as easy as using one. For a limited time, we're offering special campus savings on selected Macintosh computers and Apple printers. So visit us today, and look into the power of Macintosh. The power to be your best.

But we just did.

No payment of principal or interest will be required for 90 days on the deferred Apple Computer Loan offer. Interest accruing during this 90-day period will be added to the principal and will bear interest which will be included in the repayment schedule. The monthly payment quoted above is an estimate based on a total loan amount of $1,400 which includes a sample purchase price of $1,316 for the Performa 6214 system shown above. The total loan amount also includes a 6.0% loan origination fee. Interest is variable based on the Commercial Paper Rate plus a spread of 6.35%. For example, the month of January 1996 had an interest rate of 12.19% with an annual percentage rate (APR) of 13.97%. Monthly payment for the total loan amount described above would be $24.06. Monthly payment and APR does not assume no deferral of principal and does not include state or local sales tax. Monthly payments may vary depending on actual computer system prices, total loan amounts, state and local sales taxes, and a change in the monthly variable interest rate. Prequalification expedites the loan process, but does not guarantee final loan approval. Subsequent receipt of verification documents must be received before your loan is approved. Offers shown above expire May 15, 1996. See your campus store for details about the Apple Computer Loan. © 1996 Apple Computer, Inc. All rights reserved.
