1993 Southwest Conference Championship Baseball Signed by members of the 1993 Texas A&M baseball team, conference champions. The '93 team also tied for 5th in the College World Series. Three members of the team (Jeff Granger, Trey Moore, and Brian Thomas) were named baseball All-Americans, and six members went on to play under Big League contracts.

Amy Browning, The Battalion

The signed 1993 SWC championship baseball is part of the autograph collection on display.

he said. "Some are hard to read; some are not. We give you a couple of hints as to who the signature belongs to and let you guess."

The exhibit is also the library's first to debut on the Internet. It can be accessed at <http://www.tamu.edu/library/cushing/intropic.htm>.

Charles Villafranca, an Evans Library student worker and senior business analysis major, put the exhibit on-line for the library.

"Putting the exhibit on-line was something I felt would improve the library by (giving) it some exposure," he said. "The exhibit is totally recreated on the computer."

"The work I did on it was very rewarding, and I did it in the hope of making a difference, of setting a standard for the future development of libraries and museums."

Villafranca said the site has been accessed by many universities and institutions throughout the United States and Europe.

Smith said he is pleased with Villafranca's efforts and that the computerized exhibit is worth a visit.

"The on-line site is almost more interesting than the exhibit itself," he said. "The greatest thing about it is that people can access it anytime, they don't have to worry about when we're open."

"It took a lot more work than the actual exhibit. It was like designing an entire magazine over the computer."
