Democrats slam Senate GOP Whitewater report

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House and Democrats took the offensive Sunday, assailing a Republican draft of a Senate committee report that concludes Hillary Rodham Clinton led an effort to keep investigators from seeing documents in White House Deputy Counsel Vincent Foster's office after Foster committed suicide.

"This is not an investigation, this is a political inquisition," Associate White House Counsel Mark Fabiani said on "Fox News Sunday." "Only in Washington, D.C., could an ethics investigation conducted by Senator Al D'Amato receive this kind of attention."

The draft report of the panel, chaired by D'Amato, R-N.Y., finds that Mrs. Clinton was "closely involved" in the handling of documents in Foster's office related to the Clintons' Whitewater real estate deal and the firing of seven White House travel office workers.

The lengthy report, which will not officially be released until Tuesday, also concludes that senior White House aides gave the committee inaccurate testimony to hide the first lady's role concerning the documents in Foster's office.

Copies of the draft were obtained by The Associated Press.

Fabiani, who called D'Amato "ethically challenged," also said that no one in the administration is worrying about any potential legal problems for Mrs. Clinton.

"Most people, after looking at Whitewater for four years, are willing to sit back and say, 'If there's something wrong with this, someone will show it to me,'" Fabiani said on the interview program. "That hasn't happened."

CLINTON

Republicans, meanwhile, rallied around the report, which, while not containing any new information, still provides the most comprehensive narrative to date on the complex and far-reaching Whitewater saga.

"It's pretty hard to say that they didn't have a basis for coming to these conclusions," Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott said on CBS' "Face The Nation." "There just seems to have been a pattern here of concealment or obstruction."

Democrats on the Senate panel, meanwhile, described the leaked report as the product of "a massive hunt for any arcane tidbit with which to contradict any statement made by Mrs. Clinton during the last four years."

"Unfortunately, the extension of these hearings directly into the presidential campaign season has provoked a high degree of partisanship which has undermined the objectivity of this investigation," the Democrats said.

Regents fly via state aircraft

BRYAN, Texas (AP) — University of Texas System regents and officials appear to have used UT aircraft for trips similar to those that landed Texas A&M officials in trouble, The Bryan-College Station Eagle reported Sunday in a copyright story.

A review of flight logs for state aircraft used by UT shows that regents and UT officials:

— Used the planes for short flights to cities as near as Waco and San Antonio and to cities when commercial air service was available.

— Used the UT system planes to fly to UT football games, which UT officials said involved state business.

— Had their spouses accompany them on state aircraft to testify before a legislative committee.

— Took extended family with them on flights to official UT business and UT football games.

— Ferried the regents' chairman by air between Waco and Austin as often as two or three days a week at a cost of approximately $1,000 per day.

The UT figures don't indicate any large changes over the years, unlike the 93 percent reduction in system aircraft travel by A&M regents after a controversy involving travel under former chairman Ross Margraves Jr.

Margraves was indicted by a Brazos County Grand Jury on a felony charge of official misconduct for using an A&M system plane for a round-trip flight between Houston and Baton Rouge in 1993, reportedly to watch his son graduate from Louisiana State University. His attorney, David Berg, said Margraves denied improperly using the plane and would fight the charge.

UT System General Counsel Ray Farabee said, "I have no idea how the A&M planes are used. But I think the UT plane is used for business purposes."

Flight logs are studded with entries detailing UT officials' flights to football games:

Three regents and relatives used the system plane to fly to the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans on Dec. 31, 1995, when UT played Virginia Tech. The plane flew from Austin to San Antonio, where it picked up regent Tom Loeffler and his wife, Nancy and their three children, and past regent Sam Barshop and his wife. The plane then went to Houston, where it picked up regent Linnet Deily, and flew to New Orleans, where the game was played. The return flight followed a similar pattern.

All of the regents on the flight attended the UT-Virginia Tech football game and other official UT functions in New Orleans, Farabee said.

"There were related activities," Farabee said.

Fund-raising campaign to be launched

The University's goal is to raise $500 million to $1 billion

AUSTIN (AP) — Despite a $5.2 billion endowment, the University of Texas at Austin is facing the most daunting financial challenge in its history, according to the Austin American-Statesman.

While that 10-digit balance seems lofty, it's not a fair representation of the funds available to the school. The endowment actually provides $74 million, just 9 percent of the UT budget.

So, the university is launching the most ambitious fund-raising campaign in its history.

The campaign is tentatively scheduled to begin in the fall of 1997 with two years of quiet appeals to major donors, followed by a five-year public phase.

Larry Lollar, who was hired to mount the fund-raising effort, said the goal would be $500 million to $1 billion, with a more precise figure announced later.

"UT's not going to go away if I never raise another dime," Lollar said. "It is a solid institution. It's supported by the state and its endowment."

"But what we're facing is slippage."

What's at stake is the university's competitive edge, its ability to attract the best professors and students and to undertake enhancements such as construction of a psychology building and an art museum.

"There was a major reception with major donors and officials present."

Bobbie Lutz, an employee in Loeffler's San Antonio office; Art Dilly, UT Board of Regents Executive Secretary; and Farabee said the Loefflers had reimbursed the UT system for their children's flight. The Loefflers reimburse UT whenever their children fly on the planes, Lutz said.

Then-UT President William Cunningham (who is now the system chancellor), his wife, Shirley Bird Perry and her husband and three guests flew aboard the system plane from Austin to Little Rock, Ark. and back Oct. 19, 1991 "to attend an official function of UT Austin." The Longhorns played the University of Arkansas that day.

The plane flew UT System officials to Waco from Austin on Nov. 24, 1994, to see the UT-Baylor game "and meet with community leaders regarding matters concerning the university," according to the flight log.

UT Regent Mario Ramirez used the UT System plane frequently for travel — but that was because he lived in Roma and worked in Rio Grande City, Dilly said.

Records show, however, that Ramirez often took other family members with him on the UT System aircraft.

"I have no idea how the A&M planes are used. But I think the UT plane is used for business purposes."

— RAY FARABEE
UT System General Counsel

"It was very professional and very businesslike on trips," he said. "I usually didn't request the plane. They said they needed me so they would send the plane."

Ramirez said he might have attended a football game while he was in Austin if he was in town on university business.

"But I never used the plane to go to a football game or any athletic activity," he said.

Plane travel by both UT and A&M regents and officials have continued to attract interest, officials said.

"It is a matter of public interest," Farabee said. "They are subject to public scrutiny as well as to regulation."

State Rep. Steve Ogden, R-Bryan, said the situations described on UT and A&M system flights created "a whole range of issues from perception — something that is OK, but may create perception problems — to more serious issues about what is ethical."

UT's Top Contributors

AUSTIN (AP) — The top 10 contributors to the University of Texas at Austin in the past 20 years, according to the Austin American-Statesman.

1. Peter O'Donnell Jr., $38.4 million.
2. James Michener, $32.4 million.
3. Welch Foundation, $29.2 million.
4. Houston Endowment Inc., $18.1 million.
5. IBM Corp., $17.7 million.
6. Cockrell Foundation, $16.3 million.
7. Sid W. Richardson Foundation, $13.3 million.
8. Lyndon Baines Johnson Foundation, $12.9 million.
9. Borden Inc., $11.9 million.

All that goes toward fulfilling the mandate in the 1876 Texas Constitution for "a university of the first class."

But there are obstacles to soliciting donations: One is the perception that UT does not need donations.

The reality is that the university receives only a fraction of the endowment's proceeds. Separate appropriations from the state Legislature have fallen far behind the rate of inflation.
