Aggie Football a year-round job for players and coaches

By Ross Hecox
 THE BATTALION

The NCAA college football season spans a short four-month period every year. Most teams play 11 or 12 games a season, and their fans can only see them play at home just six dates a year.

This is no different for the A&M football program. But contrary to appearance, those involved do not just work from the end of the summer to the start of the new year.

As Aggie coaches, players and officials can attest, football is a year-round sport.

Associate Athletic Director Tim Cassidy said, due to A&M's commitment to playing in the Pigskin Classic in August, this summer has been busier than most for the Aggie coaching staff.

"Because of the Brigham Young (BYU) game, everything's been moved up a couple of weeks," Cassidy said. "We are working on recruiting and preparing for BYU, as well as preparing the two-a-day schedule."

If not preparing for the upcoming season during the summer months, the Aggie coaches conduct youth instructional camps on the A&M campus or elsewhere in the state.

Last weekend, for instance, the A&M coaches traveled to a football camp in San Angelo where many high school and middle school students were taught how to improve their skills.

A&M Defensive Coordinator Phil Bennett said running and attending camps aids the program's recruiting cause.

"You seem to find out more about recruits when you're in a relaxed environment like that," Bennett said. "You build up a relationship and get them familiar with A&M. It's also a lot of fun for us."

The A&M coaches also go to football clinics, where Defensive Line Coach Bill Johnson said they share ideas, philosophies and practice routines with other high school coaches.

When the coaching staff is not traveling somewhere to attend a clinic or camp, it runs all-day meetings setting the two-a-day summer workout schedule or prepares for the Aug. 24 BYU contest.

"We are trying to concentrate on the fact that we are starting so early against BYU," Bennett said. "We have broken down every game they played last year. They're a good football team."

Although NCAA regulations state that schools cannot have mandatory practices for their players until the start of summer two-a-days, Bennett said many Aggie players return and work out voluntarily.

"(Close to) 70 players are here actively working out this summer," Bennett said.

Despite the many tasks the coaching staff must accomplish this summer, Johnson said the atmosphere is relaxed compared to the pressures of the regular season.

"A little bit of everything is done (during the summer)," Johnson said. "But the best thing about the summer is the deadlines and time demands aren't as bad."

Cassidy said the staff's schedule is radically different during the summer.

"There's not the pressure of getting ready for a game every week," Cassidy said. "Now we're basically going from 8 to 5 instead of working from 6 a.m. until the wee hours of the night."

"(During the season) we are constantly asking ourselves, 'Are we forgetting something?'" Bennett said. "Everything is at a much faster pace."

Later this summer every coach will get three weeks of vacation. Bennett, who plans to go to Florida with his family, said even there he will probably not be able to get work out of his system.

"I'll still be thinking about football," Bennett said.

Rangers continue mastery of Orioles

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Texas Rangers got the only run they needed 15 minutes into the game. More than four hours later, they finally got to celebrate yet another victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

The Rangers hit five home runs, including four off Kent Mercker in the first three innings, and Darren Oliver limited Baltimore to five singles in a 7-0 rain-delayed win Tuesday night.

Oliver went seven innings and Dennis Cook completed the first shutout against the Orioles this season.

Texas is 7-1 against Baltimore this year after losing four of five to the Orioles in 1995.

A heavy rainshower stopped the game with two outs in the top of the eighth and the score 7-0. Play finally resumed shortly before midnight after a stoppage of 2 hours, 3 minutes.

By that time, there were only around 250 fans remaining from the sellout crowd of 47,318.

"Why wait two hours?" said Oliver, who did not return after the delay. "I'm sure if the situation would have been reversed and they were up by seven runs, they would have called it. What can you say? Homefield advantage, I guess."

Juan Gonzalez had a two-run homer in the first inning and Rene Gonzalez and Kevin Elster added solo shots in the second.

Dean Palmer made it 6-0 with a two-run drive in the third, and Damon Buford led off the fourth with a home run off Jimmy Haynes.

That was more than enough offense for Oliver (6-2), who struck out four and walked two. The rain delay spoiled his bid for his second career complete game and shutout.

hander is 3-0 with a 1.41 ERA in his last five starts.

"We looked for Darren to throw well once, twice ... It seems like now he's getting pretty good at it," Texas manager Johnny Oates said.

The four home runs allowed was a career-high by Mercker (3-6). Mercker, 1-5 since April 24, had his ERA climb to 7.46 after yielding six runs in three innings.

"Obviously, Kent didn't have too much out there today," manager Davey Johnson said. "It was a rough outing for him. The last two times out he didn't throw nearly as well as he did before."

Gonzalez gave Texas a 2-0 lead with his 12th home run of the season — the second in two nights and fourth in nine games. Gonzalez hit his second and Elster tagged his 12th in the second inning to make it 4-0.

A walk to Gonzalez preceded Palmer's 16th homer, a shot into the left-field seats.

Buford greeted Haynes with his third home run of the year.
