Kazaam not a slam dunk for O'Neal

By Jeffrey Cranor
THE BATTALION

In his newest movie Kazaam, Shaquille O'Neal proves his $120 million salary is for his talent in the NBA, not Hollywood.

And, be forewarned, he does have several rap numbers in the film.

O'Neal plays Kazaam, a 3,000-year-old genie who is called upon by the young Max Conner (Francis Capra) when Max accidentally knocks over the boom box Kazaam was trapped in.

Max is struggling to find stability. His mother remarries a man Max does not like. Max finally meets his biological father at age 12. His father is a back-alley music pirate involved with an unfriendly crowd. And the school bullies don't give him a moment's rest.

But with the arrival of the bard in the bottle, the rapping Kazaam, Max finds a path to salvation. Kazaam grants Max three wishes (no, really?), but Max wants to savor those wishes, because Kazaam cannot leave until he uses all three.

Max tries to help his father out of his deadly situation, but he finds himself caught in the same situation. Max's own greediness stands in his way. Plus, Kazaam also begins to become materialistic after he is discovered as a major rap talent (remember that this is a fairy tale).

It is hardly a smirk-inducing drudge through a contrived plot that makes the audience wish they were watching hours of Shaq slam dunk highlights instead.

The only enjoyable part of this movie-going experience is not even in the film itself, in the kids in the theater carrying on about why the musical Shaq does not deserve $120 million dollars in the NBA.

"He's not even half as good as Haakeem," one boy said. "He can even make free throws. All I ever does is dunk."

And do not expect to leave Shaq movie without the inevitable basketball-dunking conclusion. Since the Lakers' Shaq Attack plays the omnipotent rhyme master of the boom box (well, boom box), one would expect the writers to include a scene where Kazaam would ironically, have difficulty playing basketball.

But, alas, the writers provide too clever a script to allow such a predictable joke. They, in fact, stun the audience with a cunning twist of wit as the All-Pro Genie rolls a bad guy into a ball and soars over the heads of the others to slam dunk him into a garbage chute. Boom-shakalaka!

Kazaam is by no means a career-ending injury to O'Neal's life in the movies, but it certainly is no gold medal winner either.

Shaq's career as an icon, at age 24, is just beginning. There are certainly more great games to come and definitely some better movies.

Kazaam (Shaquille O'Neal) is a rapping genie

SCOTT & WHITE HEALTH PLAN

Delivering tomorrow's health care today

July 1996

Dear Scott & White Health Plan Member:

To provide personalized, comprehensive, high quality health care at a reasonable cost is the mission of the Scott & White Health Plan. In order for us to realize our mission in Bryan/College Station, it has become necessary for the Scott & White Health Plan to re-evaluate its relationship with both Brazos County hospitals. Effective September 1, 1996, the St. Joseph Regional Health Center in Bryan will be the exclusive provider of inpatient health care services for our membership in Bryan/College Station. The Health Plan has made this decision only after a great deal of thought and analysis.

We hope you will appreciate our desire to stay on course with our mission which is to provide you and your family with personalized, comprehensive, high quality health care at a reasonable cost. We believe our partnership with the St. Joseph Regional Health Center helps us accomplish this. If you have any further questions or comments, please call our Bryan/College Station Health Plan Office at 409-268-7947 or 1-800-791-8777.

Sincerely,

John W. Roberts
