then reinjured it on July 12. No amount of injections, pain-killers or therapies seemed to help.

"These two injuries, especially the second one, are proof that the Olympic Games are not meant for me," he said resignedly.

Devers' disappointment put only a slight damper on a big day for the American Olympians, who have a shot at surpassing their Barcelona medal haul of 108.

The U.S. women's basketball team and six American boxers are undefeated and in the Olympic semifinals. America's wrestlers, inspired by the memory of slain 1984 Olympic champion Dave Schultz, took two golds and a silver Wednesday. Tennis's Lindsay Davenport clinched a medal, then broke down in tears after beating her best friend and teammate, Mary Joe Fernandez.

It was a big day for Africa, too. Nigeria stunned soccer powerhouse Brazil 4-3 in overtime, setting up a gold medal showdown with Argentina. Hezekiel Sepeng won the silver medal in the men's 800, the first medal for a black South African.

And the newest Olympic event continued: Carling, the pursuit of an unearned spot on an American relay team. The lone entrant: Carl Lewis, who's trying to parlay his long jump gold into one last Olympic chance.

Two other American track stars, sprinter Michael Johnson and decathlete O'Brien, set the stage for a big Thursday night at Olympic Stadium. Johnson, seeking an unprecedented gold medal sweep, runs in the 200-meter final three days after his victory in the 400. He qualified for the race Wednesday.

O'Brien, who didn't qualify for Barcelona, had the lead through five of the 10 decathlon events with 4,592 points. O'Brien's 1992 failure attracted attention, because it undermined a "Dan & Dave" sneaker campaign with Barcelona bronze medalist Dave Johnson.

The hoopsters, led by Lisa Leslie's 35 points, beat under-sized Japan 108-93. Leslie's scoring binge set a U.S. women's record.

The United States plays Australia, which defeated Russia 74-70, in Friday's semifinals. The gold medal game is Sunday night.

Three more U.S. boxers — Antonio Tarver, David Reid and Floyd Mayweather Jr. — guaranteed themselves medals Wednesday with victories. The Americans will pick up a minimum of six bronze medals in Atlanta, with Mayweather defeating 125-pound Lorenzo Aragon of Cuba.

It was the first win by an American boxer against Cuba since Leon Spinks did it in 1976.

Light heavyweight Tarver, a pre-Olympic gold medal favorite, used a mid-second-round flurry to take control against Enrique Flores of Puerto Rico. Tarver's big left hands finally ended the fight 1:54 into the round.

Reid survived a third-round standing 8-count to defeat Mohamed Marmouri of Tunisia in a 156-pound bout.

Tennis's Davenport clinched a medal along with three freestyle wrestlers — Kurt Angle, Kendall Cross and Townsend Saunders.

Cross took gold in the 125 1/2-pound class and Angle did the same at 220, while Saunders won silver in 149 1/2-pound division.

The medal totals Wednesday: the United States 72 (27 gold, 30 silver, 15 bronze), Russia 45 (21-16-8) and Germany 43 (11-12-20).

Davenport earned her medal by beating fellow American Mary Joe Fernandez 6-2, 7-6 (8-6) in the semifinals.

"I was playing someone who's my best friend," said Davenport, who was crying after the match. "I don't want to go out there and see her lose."

Awaiting Davenport is Arantxa Sanchez Vicario of Spain, who defeated Jana Novotna of the Czech Republic 6-4, 1-6, 6-3.

Fernandez will attempt to win her second bronze medal in as many Olympics against Novotna; she also earned a spot in Saturday's doubles finals with partner Gigi Fernandez.

China's fabulous Fu Mingxia, the 17-year-old who already defended her platform gold medal, swept the Atlanta diving events Wednesday with a gold in the 3-meter springboard. The flying Fu became the first woman since Ingrid Kramer of Germany in 1960 to win the springboard and platform events in one Olympics.

One person who shared Bubka's feeling was six-time world champion Rebecca Twigg, the premier U.S. women's cyclist. She quit the team and will not compete this Saturday, apparently due to a feud with national coaching director Chris Carmichael.

A sniffer dog and agents from the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco & Firearms, which specializes in explosives, took part in the search of the apartment, which shares with his mother. For much of the day, Jewell's steps outside, head in hands.

Officials said materials from Jewell's home were tested for the presence of smokeless gunpowder used in the crude pipe bomb.

The bomb, hidden in a drab knapsack, exploded at 1:25 a.m. Saturday at an air rock concert at an pavilion in Centennial Park, killing a Georgia woman and injuring 111 other people.

Jewell, a private guard at the pavilion, pointed out the tented bag to police and helped direct people away from the area. But the bomb exploded before evacuation was complete.

A call warning of a bomb was made before the blast, but that information was never relayed to police at the park.

Reform party's ballots ready to be mailed

DALLAS (AP) — The first wave of ballots to select a Reform Party candidate were prepared Wednesday to go into the mail as part of the new third party's politics-through-the-post-office plan.

This time, officials hope they have more success reaching party members than they did with surveys to narrow the field of candidates to Ross Perot and Richard Lamm.

The surveys as well as the ballot mailings are being handled by the Perot Reform Committee, which leads the Reform Party and is bankrolled by Texas billionaire Perot.

The ballots will continue to be mailed through Saturday, said Russ Verney, national coordinator for the Perot Reform Party. Voters can cast their ballots by telephone, attending the convention, by computer modem, or by mail.

"Whatever has been received by Aug. 17 will be counted," Verney said. The party will announce its nominee on Aug. 18 in Valley Forge, Pa.

So far, the Reform Party has qualified for the ballot in some fashion in more than 30 states, the latest success coming in Iowa on Wednesday.

Verney said the task of creating a party has been overwhelming.

"I'm totally consumed in getting this second mailing printed and in the mail stream," Verney said.

The nomination survey mailings did not reach many party members, triggering nationwide complaints from people upset that they did not get the chance to participate in the process.

"I think that you have to look at the first one almost as a pilot test because it was the first time that list was used," said party spokeswoman Sharon Holman.

Agent search guard home

ATLANTA (AP) — The pressed its investigation Wednesday of Richard Jewell, searching the security home for evidence that he of the Olympic bombing actually have been the bomber.

From morning to night, armed with a search warrant, one day after Jewell's fatal explosion at Atlanta's Olympic park.

Later Wednesday, FBI also searched a shed on property overlooking the Peachtree River in northern Georgia. Local residents Jewell had rented the shed before moving to Atlanta last year.

Agents carted away a box of unidentified material from the apartment in northern suburbs, and away Jewell's blue Toyota pickup truck to be examined.

"Mr. Jewell has not been under arrest and has not charged with any crime," spokesman David Tubbs said before the search began.

In Washington, two law enforcement officials indicated investigative interest in Jewell may be diminishing somewhat.

"We are somewhat less conscious of him, in part because a couple of people have come forward and modified what they said about him before," one official, who spoke on condition he not be named, said to specify what information had been modified.

But an Atlanta FBI spokeswoman, Joyce Dean, said "premature" to suggest any investigative interest in Jewell had lessened.

Jewell, a former state deputy, has denied responsibility, and his lawyer said Wednesday he welcomed the search.

"He wants it over with," son Bryant said. "He wants them to search the place, nothing and get out of my life."

A sniffer dog and agents from the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco & Firearms, which specializes in explosives, took part in the search of the apartment, which shares with his mother. For much of the day, Jewell's steps outside, head in hands.

Officials said materials from Jewell's home were tested for the presence of smokeless gunpowder used in the crude pipe bomb.
