Christie Brinkley to marry a fourth time in Long Island

NEW YORK (AP) — No marriage on a mountain this time for supermodel Christie Brinkley.

Brinkley

She will tie the knot for the fourth time this weekend in a small ceremony at her Long Island home, the New York Post reported Tuesday. Peter Cook, a 37-year-old never-married architect, popped the question in August after several months of dating Brinkley.

The Post said husband No. 2, Billy Joel, may attend the wedding. Brinkley, 42, divorced developer Richard Taubman last year. The two were married in ski boots in 1994 at Telluride, a Colorado ski resort, a few months after they survived a helicopter crash.

Miss America gets acquainted with living in the limelight

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Tara Dawn Holland says becoming Miss America was out of her hands — or anyone else's — and she told her rivals so.

"As I told the girls here, Miss America 1997 was chosen before we were born," Holland said. "I happened to be the fortunate and blessed one that got the crown."

The 23-year-old Miss Kansas, crowned Miss America in Atlantic City, N.J., on Saturday night, is getting used to the Northeast.

"Right now I'm in New York and from my hotel room I hear the sirens and cars honking at each other all the time," she said. In Kansas, "everybody was so nice. And nobody honked their horns."

SEATTLE (AP) — In the latest ticketing to get into the grunge band's first hometown concert in nearly three years.

Fans waited two hours to enter the sold-out Monday night, even after the doors opened. The first concert in a 12-city North American tour.

"I've had to wait forever," Alan Berth said of the minute wait to pick up his tickets. "This is a joke."

"Bring back Ticketmaster," Jane Sams said, mind the surcharge if I don't have to wait."

Pearl Jam has boycotted Ticketmaster for saying the company's surcharge makes tickets expensive for the band's teen-age fans.

The band in 1994 decided to tour without Ticketmaster but canceled the plans after learning it would be easy. Last year, the band toured in smaller cities out help from Ticketmaster.

On Monday, the tickets were distributed by Tours and Ticketing, a Philadelphia company.

Now, Father Giannetti has moved to his present position, as pastor of Our Lady of Mercy, where he continues to bridge gaps with in the surrounding Argentine community.

His pastorate position includes overlooking a school and a radio station that broadcasts music, news, sports and Sunday services. The church also caters to 350 families in nearby slums, feeding them and making efforts to keep their children off drugs.

Giannetti said he enjoys working with the people.

"I feel like I give birth to them," he said. "I'm also a part of the Christ-growing process in themselves."

Giannetti said A&M taught him how to take responsibility for his parish and helped him become appointed as an Ecumenical Delegate, in which he overlooks the Archdiocese of Buenos Aires' relations with other churches in the city.

"A&M was a good experience to get to know a world wide spectrum of people," he said. "It also taught me to know other Christian religions and other religions."

Twenty-four years after his graduation, Giannetti returned to the United States to attend a seminar in New York and to his beloved alma mater.

Since he was in College, Smith, the state of Tech's medical school, Haragan stressed he was campus changes on ampus.

"There are more girls said. "There weren't that many when I was here."

While he hurried to an interview with the Texas Aggie magazine, Giannetti left words of advice for A&M students.

"Think about what you do for life for no one pops into the tent for nothing," he said. "Don't think about being in engineering or agriculture. Think 'What can I do for others?'"
