A&M softball gets fall tune-up

By JEREMY FURTICK
THE BATTALION

The Texas A&M Softball Team got off to a good start this fall season with opening victories over St. Edwards College and Sam Houston State University at the 1996 Aggie Fall Invitational at Central Park in College Station Saturday.

The tournament gave 16 Texas schools the opportunity to compete against each other in practice games. No statistics were kept and no line-ups were made, but Aggie Head Coach Jo Evans said these games benefit the team's progress.

"Coaches can always see more in games than practice," Evans said. "It's good to compete in some game situations and see how our girls respond."

Evans said the Aggies displayed many positives but still need more game experience.

"We showed a good mix of speed and power today, but we made some mistakes and missed some signals," Evans said. "Our girls still have to learn what they can and can't do, but that's what these games are for. I am excited, though, about our performance and effort."

Evans said one concern she no longer has is her transition into the head coach's role.

"Taking over as head coach has been a lot easier than I expected," she said. "I feel comfortable with the players and coaching staff. The girls' attitude and work ethic have made this a smooth transition; their maturity has allowed us to concentrate on softball and not coaching changes."

Evans said the Aggies need to take Saturday's positives and build on them in preparation for the Pre-Big 12 tournament to be held in Independence, Mo., Oct. 4-6.

"The next two weeks are critical for us," she said. "We're not ready to dominate the Big 12. We still need to work on some fundamentals, take some ground balls, and work on game situations."

Evans said she feels confident the team will be ready for a good showing in its first Big 12 competition this fall.

"We have a great group of girls that want to learn," she said. "We'll be ready for the rest of the Big 12."

Cowboys lose second in a row

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) — Emmitt Smith couldn't believe it. Barry Switzer sounded disgusted.

The Buffalo Bills, missing injured starting quarterback Jim Kelly, relied on their defense Sunday in a 10-7 victory over the Cowboys, dropping the defending Super Bowl champs to 1-3.

"It's like a bad dream," said Smith, who had only 25 yards on 15 carries, his worst outing in nearly two years. "I can't believe what is happening and the reason why it is happening. Whatever it is, we need to get it corrected quickly."

Todd Collins, making only his second career start in place of Kelly, completed 10 of 17 passes for 88 yards and one touchdown before spraining his right ankle late in the third quarter with Buffalo leading 10-0. Collins was replaced on the next series by Alex Van Pelt, who played the rest of the way.

The Bills (3-1) smothered the Dallas offense, intercepting three Troy Aikman passes and limiting the Cowboys to 192 yards.

"Never in a million years would anyone have told me that the Dallas Cowboys would be 1-3 after four games," said cornerback-receiver Deion Sanders.

Switzer had one word for his team's play: "Dumb."

"We made some dumb plays," he said. "Until we get smarter in all phases of the game — offense, defense and kicking game — this will happen a lot to us."

The Cowboys are off to their worst start since 1990, when Jimmy Johnson was the coach and Dallas was rebuilding. No team has ever started 1-3 and won the Super Bowl.

After the game, the Cowboys sat in the locker room, stunned for a second straight week after losing to a team they feel they should have beaten. Dallas lost to Indianapolis last week after taking a 21-3 lead.

"I wish I had the answers," Aikman said. "The answers are that we need to run the ball better and throw the ball better."

Dallas didn't score until 5:53 left in the game. A 24-yard catch by Herschel Walker set up Smith's 2-yard TD run.

"It was a big-time outing by our defense," Buffalo safety Henry Jones said. "With all the weapons Dallas has — with Emmitt and Aikman and Deion (Sanders) — we had to come up big and give our offense a chance."

Aikman was 16-of-33 for 164 yards for the Cowboys, who were hurt by costly penalties and turnovers.

Woods will play PGA full time

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — Woods didn't win the B.C. Open that went to Fred Funk — but he did win enough money to guarantee he will play full time on the Tour next year.

The final round was suspended because of rain Sunday with the eighth hole and resumed. The tournament was a 54-hole event and Pete Jordan — the third-place leader at 16-under-par — won a one-hole playoff, won by Fred Funk the first hole when he nearly missed his approach shot.

Woods, who started the 1996 season at 13-under along with Paul Burke, tied for third with a score of 135 and earned $58,000.

That gave Woods $140,194 in prize money for the year, putting him fourth on the money list — and he is on the brink of earning enough to finish in the top 125 and earn a PGA Tour card for 1997. He has won about $20,000 — and he has won four tournaments in which he has earned more than $100,000 — he should be a lock.

It's all academic, actually. Woods was now well past the 150th spot on the money list last week — $100,000 — and anyone in the top 150 can accept an unlimited number of sponsor exemptions, guaranteeing that Woods will get into any PGA Tour event he wants next year.

The third-place money winner, made Woods eligible to play in the Disney Classic, the last regular event of the year, since he has passed the amount won by the 150th player last year.

Likely, it also means that Woods will not have to go through a qualifying school.
