

FBI probes Death Row records

NEW YORK (AP) — The FBI is conducting an intense investigation into Death Row records and its possible ties to a Los Angeles street gang when Eric Shakur was shot and killed, the New York Post reported Wednesday.

The FBI isn't interested in the shooting. They're looking at the whole picture, "an unidentified senior law enforcement source was quoted as saying.

The FBI is looking at Death Row from the top to the bottom. "Death Row Records, one of the most popular and the largest independent rap label in the country, is run by Marion 'Suge' Knight, who allegedly has deep ties with the Bloods.

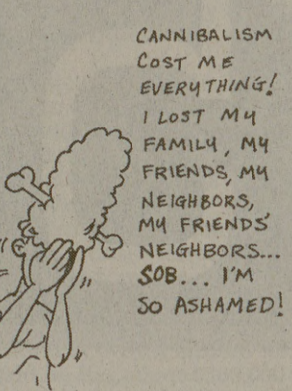

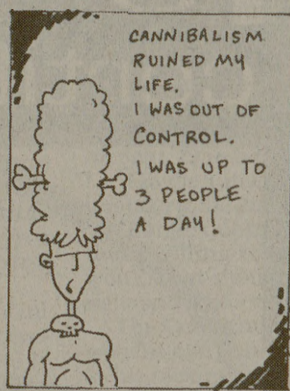

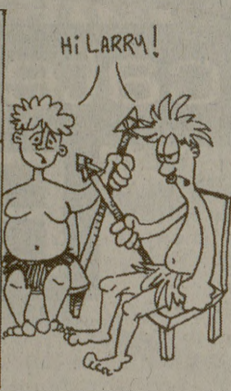

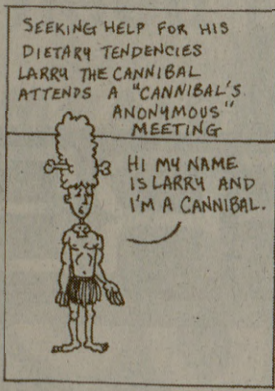

Knight, 30, has never publicly admitted belonging to the Bloods, a sports ring with the initials B.B., and there is speculation it means "Members of the Bloods," the Post said.

Knight, the founder, president and chief executive of the Los Angeles-based record company, was convicted of robbery and assault in 1994 and still faces five federal weapons charges, the newspaper said.

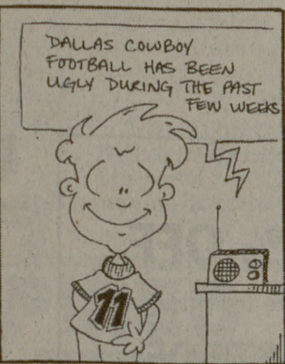

He was wounded, though not seriously, in the Sept. 7 drive-by attack on the Las Vegas strip that killed Shakur on life support for nearly a week before he died. The motive for the attack remains unknown.

Knight, who was driving his car when it was hit by gunfire, and other witnesses from his caravan of at least 10 cars, gave detectives little help, authorities said.
