Health fair begins today

SPECIAL TO THE BATTALION

Have you had your blood pressure checked recently? Do you think your blood iron level may be too low? What is your blood type? Has your vision been screened lately? Have you had an EKG? Do you know the amount of body fat you have? Are you concerned about HIV and other STDs?

Do you want to become more informed about health and find out what services are available on campus and in the community?

If so, the 1996 Health and Wellness Fair is for you. On Wednesday, Oct. 2, A.P. Beutel Health Center will present "Big 12 Health Tips - Score Big with Better Health" to promote social, mental, emotional, physical, and spiritual health.

Dr. Lucille Isdale, director of A.P. Beutel Health Center, invites all Texas A&M students, faculty, staff and community members to check out the fair. The Health Fair will be held in the MSC walkway and Flagroom from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The fair's goal is to increase awareness and interest concerning health issues and how they relate to students, faculty, staff and the surrounding community.

More than 40 campus and community organizations will be represented to provide information and free screenings.

Services that will be offered include blood pressure, blood glucose and hemoglobin assessment, body fat ranking, and vision screenings.

Biofeedback and stress tests will be conducted, and information on stress management will be provided.

An ambulance will be parked near Rudder Fountain. Some exciting activities will include massages, sample products, door prizes and other free activities.

Entertainment will be provided by Jazzercise at 10 a.m., Aerofit Health and Fitness Center at 12 p.m., Rec Sports at 12:30 p.m., Voices of Praise at 1 p.m. and the Aggie Wranglers at 1:15 p.m.

CAREER

"I think at one time there was a glass ceiling, but it is disappearing now and many industries are hiring regardless of sex or race," Haack said. "In some of the older companies there might still be a small problem, but I think it is really diminishing overall."

Matt Brannen, an engineering graduate student, said females are actually at an advantage in the work place today.

"There's a big push for political correctness today, so if companies find women highly qualified, they sometimes pick them over a man who is just as highly qualified," Brannen said. "Women are getting the same opportunities as guys these days."

The survey revealed that women and men tend to pursue different career fields.

Men tend to choose math and science-related careers and women chose education and health-related fields.

Jennifer Ball, a junior elementary education major, said the tendency of a woman to pursue a traditional career like is related to her upbringing.

"It all goes back to the roles they were brought up with in their family life," Ball said. "A lot of people were brought up with the male as the bread winner and taking care of financial concerns, while the women looked after the kids and took care of everyone."

Now You Can Drive To Italy In Less Than 10 Minutes

Welcome To The Vintage House Trattoria at Messina Hof.

You're sitting in a small, family-owned eatery on a small family-owned Estate. A soft breeze gently caresses the sea of grapevines...swaying in natural harmony.

Authentic Italian food so good you'll want to go home and paint your ceiling.

The pastel sunlight streams in through tall, stained-glass windows. The green clear lake mirrors the perfect sky. The large white cranes seem to shimmer in the reflected light.

Fresh. Gourmet. Handmade. Homemade. Casual.

You sip a superb glass of wine, made close by. Your spirits soar. Your palate rejoices. You've found the Mediterranean...the Southern coast of Italy...and you can drive here in less than ten minutes.

Open for lunch 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., Wednesdays - Sundays and open for dinner on Friday and Saturday evenings by reservation.

This is how it should be. This is how it is. The Vintage House Trattoria at Messina Hof.
