Candidates come to terms with congressional limits

(AP) — The following are answers of the major presidential candidates to the question: "Do you support congressional term limits?"

Bill Clinton

"No. I share with supporters of congressional term limits their goal to reform our political system and renew our democracy. I do not, however, believe that term limits are the appropriate means to achieve this desirable end."

Bob Dole

"As president, I will push for an amendment to the Constitution that establishes a two-term limit for senators and a six-term limit for House members. I will continue to press for legislation that limits the power of special interest groups and makes representatives more accountable to their constituents. These decisive steps will further enhance the confidence of the electorate in Congress, and the laws it developed, as we enter the 21st century."

Ross Perot

"Yes. Our elected leaders must realize that serving the American people is a privilege, not a career. Seventy-four percent of the American people support term limits. It is time we passed a constitutional amendment limiting congressional terms."

Probable social security changes remain unspoken

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whenever Social Security comes up, President Clinton and Bob Dole gingerly promise not to touch it. But away from the campaign, armies of researchers are amassing arguments to make sure the next president does take action to keep the system solvent.

The most radical reforms would have Social Security "touched" in a way — by privatizing at least part of the $400 billion collected each year.

Instead of putting the money from workers' and employers' payroll taxes into government bonds some money would be invested in the stock market, where it could earn a higher return but also face greater risks.

A government advisory council, working out of the spotlight for two years, will produce its report soon after the election. The 13 members could not agree on a single remedy but instead will put forward three rival plans.

Both Clinton and Republican challenger Dole have endorsed the idea of appointing a blue-ribbon commission along the lines of a 1983 panel that dealt with an earlier crisis in the government's biggest benefit program.

Clinton and Dole's views on possible changes are pretty much a mystery, given their terse comments during the campaign. The subject did not come up in Sunday's debate.

One possible hint: Carolyn Weaver, a longtime Dole adviser on Social Security who also serves on the advisory council, supports the most far-reaching privatization plan to divert $1.6 trillion of Social Security contributions into stocks. Individuals, not the government, would decide how to invest the money.
