FROM Finals TO Finance

You're not done blazing your trail. Not by a longshot. Being a success in school is just the first step. Beginning a successful career is your next. Starting with branch banking, for over 140 years, Wells Fargo has pioneered the way people bank. And now, in an age where banking by mail, ATM usage, and telephone banking are common practices, we are looking towards the future with 24-hour cyber-banking, merging with the superhighway, and moving into the supermarket.

So as you venture into the uncharted territories of the professional world, consider a company that shares the same innovative visions and pioneering values as you. Explore the new frontier of career opportunities at Wells Fargo. We will be on campus for the following:

State Rep. Steve Ogden said accessing information about sex offenders is crucial to end these types of offenses.

"These are very dangerous people," Ogden said. "Without being able to identify these offenders, our ability to rehabilitate them is nil. People in this state will be safer now."

Lt. Scott McCollum, College Station Police Department public information officer, said the data-

DONATIONS

Donors of "Capturing the Spirit" have specified that 99 percent of the funds should go to designated programs.

Donors allocated $96.5 million for scholarships, fellowships and awards and $36.2 million will go to faculty support for creating professorships, chairs and awards.

Almost $210 million is designated for University program support and $118.5 will provide enhancements for research.

Over $32 million will go to building projects and $86.7 million will contribute to student, faculty and program support while $58 million worth of equipment, art, books, software and livestock was also donated.

As a result of the campaign, over 580 endowed scholarships were created. A&M faculty research grants helped add $118 million to the fundraising.

The Sterling C. Evans Library received more than $16 million in donations.

The College of Engineering received a $52 million donation from former student Dwight Look, Class of '43.

Look donated a 1,000-acre tract of land in Guam which the University plans to sell.

Jim Palincsar, campaign director, said people need to understand the Development Foundation does not have over $637 million sitting in a vault somewhere.

"We are using this money to enhance what is already good at A&M," Palincsar said. "There seems to be some confusion ... some people have the idea it's all in a bank at the Development Foundation.

"Donors tell us where they want their money invested, and we put it there."
