

GRADES

The RVs require a 2.3 GPR for membership. If members fall below this, they become inactive until their grades improve. RVs' activities include involvement in social rallies, serving as the Honor Guard for the governor, and representing A&M at Mardi Gras parades in New Orleans. McCleskey said the RVs are the best the Corps has to offer A&M.

"They need to stand clearly above and beyond any other Corps unit," McCleskey said.

Clinkscales said despite the grade requirements, there is a cushion for cadets that fall below the units' grade requirements.

"Because the proposition is new, the Corps is willing to take individual considerations in a case-by-case situation,"

Chris Brooke, RV first sergeant and a senior biology major, said the RVs are admired by other Corps members and are expected to live up to a higher standard in dress and demeanor.

"That's a challenge to live up to," he said. "It's trying your best in all situations to have high character and to stand up for what is right. We take that challenge with a lot of pride."

Dave Riedl, a junior civil engineering major, said being inducted into the company last night was an awesome feeling.

"I hope I make all of the Ross Volunteers who came before me proud," he said.

Brooke said his induction into the RVs was one of the defining moments of his Corps career.

"It was the realization that you've become what you've looked up to," he said. "You look in the mirror and you just can't believe it."
