Welfare law contemplated

(AP) — Here are the responses of the major presidential candidates to the question: "Under the new welfare law, should all welfare recipients willing to work be guaranteed a job, training or other assistance from government if they cannot find employment covering basic living costs?"

sure the jobs are there. There should be one million new jobs for welfare recipients by the year 2000. States under this law can now take the money that was spent on the welfare check and use it to help businesses to provide paychecks. I challenge every state to do it soon."

also helps eliminate one of the biggest barriers for women who want to go to work — lack of child care — by providing almost $14 billion for child care programs. Additionally (it) contains a safety net that allows states to exempt 20 percent of their caseload — the hardship cases — from the time limits."

"We have a moral obligation to make sure the people who are being required to work have the opportunity to work. We must make

Bob Dole
"This legislation provides states with strong financial incentives to help welfare recipients get jobs or get the training they need for a well-paying job. This legislation

Ross Perot
"Our government must help welfare recipients receive the tools they need to become productive taxpayers."

Minor parties sharing Texas ballot

(AP) — Their names don't make a familiar chord as do Bill Clinton and Bob Dole. But Harry Browne, John Hagelin and Howard Phillips share spots with them on the Texas presidential ballot this year. Browne is the nominee of the Libertarian Party; Hagelin is running on the Natural Law Party ticket; and Phillips represents the U.S. Taxpayer Party. Libertarians have had candidates on the Texas ballot since 1980. This year, the party is fielding candidates in statewide races for the U.S. Senate, Railroad Commission and four Supreme Court seats. Libertarians also are running in several congressional races. A party automatically qualifies for the 1998 statewide ballot if at least one of its statewide candidates receives at least 5 percent of the vote. The Place 3 Supreme Court race — which includes a Republican but no Democrat — could be the race that provides the needed margin this year. The Natural Law Party has candidates for president, U.S. Senate and Railroad Commission, along with some congressional races and the State Board of Education. The Natural Law Party and the U.S. Taxpayer Party, which is fielding only a presidential candidate, gained spots on the ballot by submitting petitions with more than 44,000 signatures.

Clinton sends personal note to Nancy Reagan

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President Clinton sent Nancy Reagan a personal note Wednesday after she objected to a campaign ad featuring Jim Brady, Ronald Reagan's wounded press secretary.

The White House did not release the note's message but said the ad would stop running in a day or so.

"If we continue to advertise on this issue, we'll take Mrs. Reagan's views into consideration," presidential spokesman Mike McCurry said.

The ad, unveiled last week, shows Brady — shot during the assassination attempt on President Reagan in 1981 — praising President Clinton for a gun control bill. It opens with footage of the attempt on Reagan's life.

"This horrible re-enactment stretches even the minimum levels of civility in current political advertising," Nancy Reagan wrote.

McCurry said the ad "really doesn't have anything to do with either President Reagan or Mrs. Reagan." Besides, he said, "that particular footage, of course, Mrs. Reagan introduced at the Republican convention" in a GOP video. "So it's a very familiar scene to all Americans and certainly to Mrs. Reagan."

McCurry said Brady and his wife, Sarah, a leader of gun-control efforts, "are obviously sympathetic to Mrs. Reagan's concern."

Family says, 'Dole's a sweater man'

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the Hanford family draws names for Christmas presents, there is one everybody dreads: Bob, the brother-in-law. Uncle Bob Dole.

"You don't want to get him clothes, and you're not sure about the electronic gear he already has," exclaims John Hanford, the older brother. Dole's wife, Elizabeth.

"He has an ability to take care of stuff because of his disability, so that rules out briefcases, portfolios, memo books," Hanford says. But in the best ways the man who wants to be president is like any other brother-in-law.

Around family, Hanford confides, "Bob's a sweater man."

The longtime Kansas legislator, now Republican presidential nominee, has been known as Majority Leader in the Senate, as Beltway Insider, even as Richard Nixon's Hatched Man. But Sweater Man?

It's the personal side of Dole known only to family and a handful of decades-old friends. And, while he is described in superlatives as a loyal and thoughtful man, a sweater is as warm and fuzzy as this stoic Russell, Kan., native gets.

Back in Russell, sisters Gloria and Norma Jean are remembered on every birthday and Christmas with more cards and more money, "so we can go out and get something we need," says Gloria.

The sisters reciprocate with Dole's sentimental favorites — homemade ice cream, fried chicken and pickled eggs — whenever he sweeps into town.

The last time was in August, when Dole announced Jack Kemp as his running mate. Making a special trip to the family home that Dole still owns, Gloria arranged for red roses to greet him from an ancient white vase on the hall table.

It was the same white vase that held the red roses 2nd Lt. Robert J. Dole had wired to his mother more than 50 years ago from his Army post.

"He had tears in his eyes when he saw it there," Gloria said. "I knew he would, because it's a touch of Mom."
