Prairie View vows to win Sunrayce

PRAIRIE VIEW, Texas (AP) — Prairie View A&M engineering students don't want to hear "nice try."

In last year's national solar-powered car race, Prairie View A&M was outspent, out-designed and outrun. The 48 students building the Sunpanther II vow 1997 will be different.

"No one is out of reach for us," said project leader Edwin Lloyd, a 23-year-old senior from Dallas. "We can do it."

This time around, Prairie View A&M promises to win.

"We're not going just to finish in the top three," said DeLeon Bennett, 22, of Houston.

But winning next summer's Indianapolis-to-Colorado Springs "sun-car" race will be a tall order.

In the most recent of the biennial Sunrayce contest, Prairie View A&M finished 36th in a field of 38. The university's Sunpanther I was the only Texas entrant in the race won by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The Prairie View team was slapped with an eight-hour time penalty because Sunpanther I arrived in Indianapolis with batteries that didn't conform to rules.

The goal of the 10-day, 1,200-mile race is to foster teamwork and raise interest in advanced technology. The car with the lowest cumulative time wins.

In June, Sunpanther II faces entries from leading schools such as MIT, Purdue University and California Polytechnic Institute at Pomona, not to mention Texas A&M, Prairie View A&M's big brother to the north. About 70 cars already are vying for 40 race slots.

Tarrant County leads state in sex offenders

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Despite a state promise to curtail the number of paroled sex offenders sent to Tarrant County, the area still leads Texas in the percentage of rapists and molesters imported from other counties.

The county is home to 253 paroled sex offenders, slightly more than half of whom were shipped in from other counties across the state.

In August 1995, state officials promised to reduce that rate in response to local outrage over the county getting a disproportionate share of paroled sex offenders.

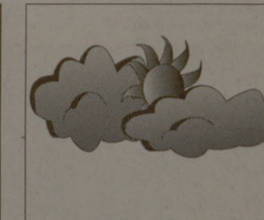

But there are only 25 fewer sex offenders in the area since then, and the ratio of non-resident to resident offenders has actually gone up since September 1995, when 163 offenders were from Tarrant County and 115 from elsewhere.

Although "there has been an effort and I think the numbers have gotten better ... the truth is, Tarrant County, and particularly Fort Worth, continue to have a disproportionately large number of the offenders," said city council member Bill Meadows.

Of the 253 sex offenders in the county as of Wednesday, 128 committed their crimes in another part of the state, while 125 committed their attacks here, according to statistics kept by the Texas Department of Criminal Justice.

Other counties with high percentages of imported offenders include Harris County with 41 percent, Dallas County with 33 percent, Bexar County with 24 percent and Bellingham County with 15 percent.

TOUGHNESS COMMITMENT LEADERSHIP

A graduate of the University of Texas School of Law, Joe Cannon has practiced law in Central Texas for 36 years. During these years, Joe has established an extraordinary record of commitment and leadership...

A Lifetime of Service to the community
Joe Cannon has been a leader in the "Now You Are 18" program, educating kids about the legal system and what awaits them in our jails if they cross the law.

Joe has also stepped in to help assure that everyone is treated fairly by the courts, regardless of income. He was elected to the Pro Bono College of the State Bar of Texas for his extensive contributions of service to Central Texas low income families.

Hands-on courtroom experience
An experienced courtroom lawyer, Joe has tried hundreds of cases before juries and has been lead counsel in more than 25 cases before the 10th Court of Appeals in Waco.

As a prosecutor, the courage to get results
Joe Cannon was one of two attorneys appointed as Special Prosecutor to try a member of the Texas mafia. Joe got the job done as the jury came back with the death sentence. It's that type of commitment and courage that has earned Joe Cannon the endorsements of 11 out of the 13 District Attorneys in the 10th District Court of Appeals.

JOE CANNON
Family man, neighbor, member of the community

Joe was married for 33 years to Alice Jean Sundberg, who died in 1993. He is proud of their two children, JoAl Cannon-Sheridan, a Baylor Law School graduate now practicing in Cherokee County, and Thure Cannon, a graduate student at the University of Texas L.B.J. School of Public Affairs in Austin.

Joe has always been actively involved in the affairs of his community. He has worked with young people as a Little League Coach and Umpire, and as an Assistant Scout Master. Joe served as President of the Groesbeck Lions Club, and is a member of both the Groesbeck and Mexia Chambers of Commerce. He was also a trustee of the Mexia I.S.D. School Board for five years, and is a Ruling Elder and Sunday School teacher at the First Presbyterian church of Mexia.
