FILES

Michael Beckendorf, who owns duplexes and fourplexes in Bryan-College Station, had a complaint filed against one of his rental properties.

He said the OCSS file is a fair system because it allows both the landlord and the tenant to voice their side.

"I think it (the Resident Reaction File) works pretty good," Beckendorf said.

"It lets residents give their side and lets the landlord give their side, and lets them (the students) decide for themselves who's right."

The file has been offered as a resource to students for more than five years. Recently, the process has changed to make it easier and more accessible for students.

The OCSS wants to put a box in the MSC so the forms can conveniently be deposited. They are also promoting the service so students will use it more.

Hodges said the file is used primarily for complaints, but they are trying to encourage students to submit compliments.

Currently, 17 complaints and no compliments are in the file.

"A lot of times people like to complain more than they like to compliment," Hodges said.

"It is [a beneficial service] if a lot of them (students) knew what it was. I know I had no idea we could complain."

Hodges said although OCSS employees

"have a pretty good idea of what some of the nicer areas are to live in," they cannot give students their opinions.

Decanini said more students would use the file if they knew it existed.

"It is [a beneficial service] if a lot of them (students) knew what it was," she said. "I know I had no idea we could complain."

The file is in the OCSS resource room.

Compliment or complaint forms may be mailed, faxed or picked up in 112 Koldus.

Michael Bonner, a tenor in Voices of Praise and a freshman computer engineering major, said a group of women were "saved" during the women's seminar and many in the men's seminar felt they had been blessed as well.

"They learned about how they can apply the Gospel to their witnessing lives," Bonner said. "Everybody that came out to the seminars was happy. They felt rejuvenated."

After the seminars, Pastor James Turner presented a mid-day sermon, ministering to students about the Word and being under the influence of the Holy Spirit.

Following the seminars, a rehearsal was held for A&M and the other university choirs to practice together for the evening's concert.

Bonner said the choirs were privileged to have Charles Ty-

"He was great," he said. "He told us to learn them by heart. He only had an hour to teach us."
