SENATE

"Now they've told the students that they don't want what 65 percent of the students want," Howard said.

Rob Cullison, a Northside senator, Rules and Regulations committee member and sophomore political science major, voted in the Nov. 24 meeting to send the bill to the Senate, but voted against discharging the bill from committee Wednesday night.

Cullison said he believed the Senate should have debated the issue, but voted against discharging the bill because he respects the 17 other committee members and the votes they made.

Cullison said a motion to discharge a bill is port of what A&M students want.

usually used when a committee does not do its job, and he believes the committee did its job. 'That motion to discharge the bill was in effect telling those senators (in the committee) ..

they didn't do their job," Cullison said. Chris Torn, head yell leader and a senior agricultural development major, said he does not support run-off elections and thinks the Senate made the right decision in not discharging the bill.

Torn said the present election system works, and rewards those candidates who campaign hard.

I believe right now we have a system that rewards people for campaigning their rears off," Torn said. "It allows anyone who's willing to work hard to win.'

Gary Kipe, a senior yell leader and an agricultural development major, said he is in sup-

"I feel that as representatives of the body that they (senators) were elec press the views of the student body," The student body clearly said what lieved in. I believe the student senato have taken that information and mo ward with it instead of sitting on it."

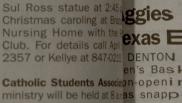

In other business, the Senate a the Flexible Tuition and Fee Simpl Resolution, and the Policy on Min was passed unanimously.

The Flexible Tuition and Fee Sim tion Resolution stated that the Studen ate is not in favor of Representation Ogden's Fee Simplification Bill or Ratliff's Flexible Tuition Bill.

The Policy on Minors Bill outlined sity-wide minors policy, since the Un does not currently have an official garding academic minors.
