

SUSPENSION

When the University investigation is over, the case will be referred to the Interfraternity Council Judicial Board. If an individual is responsible for hazing, the department of Student Life's Student Judicial Services will handle the case.

Price said the suspension prohibits the fraternity from being recognized by the University, using A&M facilities for events or attaching the University name to their fraternity.

Two hazing incidents have occurred at A&M during the 1996-97 school year.

In November, Kappa Alpha fraternity was disbanded until 1999, after a pledge suffered bodily injury at a Kappa Alpha rally on Oct. 14, 1996, in Robertson County.

On Dec. 13, 1996, Corps of Cadets Company B-2 violated hazing and drinking policies at an off-campus party where alcohol was served to minors and a senior allegedly struck a freshman. The company was subsequently disbanded.

Jason Jordan, former Interfraternity Council president and a senior marketing major, said he thinks everyone agrees that hazing is dangerous and people need to act. There is a hazing problem so it needs to be solved.

"Now, it's a matter of 'let's make headlines and start making solutions,'" Jordan said.

Jordan said members of organizations will see their friends get caught and punished for hazing, but might continue to break themselves.

He said they do not realize when they do get caught, the consequences will be five times worse.

HISTORY

"It gives them somebody else to look up to, which goes back to the knowledge thing," Moreland said.

Wheatfall said the fact that so many black entertainers and athletes are highly regarded is a result of the unintentional conditioning.

"We have channeled them (blacks) in a one way track," Wheatfall said.

Some events during Black History Month, such as a Texas Black Business Leaders Reception on Feb. 7 and the African Marketplace on Feb. 14, will have a business edge.

Stephenie Rhodes, committee adviser, said the black entrepreneurs attending the reception do not have to work in corporate America — they could be small business owners.

Rhodes said although businesses incorporate natural plays to help African-Americans get started in work force, more advancement is needed.

"Most businesses try to have a diverse representation, or are forced through government to have diverse representation so the need is there for us but it's still hard for us to get our foot in the door," Rhodes said.

Moreland said Black History Month organizers welcome everybody and do not cater to African-Americans only.

"We don't exclude anybody," Moreland said. "We encourage all people, especially non-blacks, to come and appreciate the African-American culture as part of our American society."

BRISCO

"I feel as if, through a lot of hard work and effort, I could make a difference for a system that I have really come to care a great deal about," she said.

Interacting with students has been one of the most enjoyable parts of serving on the Board of Regents, Brisco said.

Being a regent is not Brisco's full-time job, but she said it has required a great deal of her time.

"It has been work that I have done, because I'm proud of what our system has been able to accomplish and I'm optimistic about what we can become," she said.

Brisco said A&M is an important state institution and, as a Texan, she wants to continue to see the A&M System grow stronger.

"I will always care about our System ...," she said. "I hope there always be ways I can stay involved in the future."

Brisco said she will continue to stay busy after her term as a regent. She is the mother of three and serves on three other boards.

Brisco serves on the Houston Symphony Board and the Institute of International Education Board. She is also a member of the Clinton Bill Clinton also appointed Brisco to the Southern African Development Fund Board.

FAIR

Cindy Garcia, co-chair of corporate relations and a junior accounting major, said the fair is not only useful for finding a job but also for learning helpful skills.

"There is often a misconception about who should go to the fair," Garcia said. "Freshmen and sophomores can and should go to get a feel for how it will be for them in a couple of years."

Skinner said there are opportunities for everyone at the fair.

"Underclassmen can go and learn about the companies and actually talk to the recruiter about the company," Skinner said. "Juniors can also go not for the experience but also for internship opportunities as well."

Aggie
By COURTNEY THE B...
For a time, it seemed the advantage was with the ranked Texas A&M Aggie Football Team during its 17th-ranked victory Saturday against the Aggies. Yet during the late freestyle relay, the Aggies just a few points over the Aggie relay teams," Moreland said. "We hid (freshman) in lane eight, and that race helped cause it was early in the Aggies performance. The Aggies performed their best. Freestyle relay teams, such as the 200-meter freestyle relay team, were very impressive. The freestyle relay team swept first, second and 50-meter freestyle and the 1,000 was a close race.
