

WHAT'S IT LIKE AT THE PLASMA CENTER?

To the staff of the Plasma Center,

I would like to start by saying thank you to each and every employee for making the past three years enjoyable in a professional, efficient and courteous environment. As a donor since 1993, I have been more than satisfied with every aspect of your operation, which allows myself and others to contribute what we can to community service, all the while being serviced by diligent, but relaxed, workers. Everyone at the Plasma Center, from those behind the front counter to the phlebotomists to the supervisors, have made great efforts to insure that each donor feels hygienically safe, as well as keeping the atmosphere light.

Like most, I started coming to the Plasma Center for monetary reasons, but I soon developed acquaintances that appealed to me almost as much as the original need for money, enabling me to look forward to each donation, not only for my wallet's sake but also to see my friends. Like I commented to someone recently, talking to people at the Plasma Center was like getting mail from a far-off friend that you don't get to do much with, but who you can talk to as often as you write. For those acquaintances and for your continual services. I would like to thank all of those I've come to know and appreciate over the past three years - Emily, and Tracy, Heath, and Marty, Ada and Josie, etc... more I can't remember or those who have gone on to better things.

So, as I graduate from this great University, I bid you all a fond farewell and strong commendations on such a successful blend of quality medical practice and friendly service. Thank you all and have a great summer. Thanks, C.F.

LICENSE

Jones said his personal convictions could not influence the legal decision he made.

"I have to make a legal decision, not a moral decision," he said. "Since it met the legal requirements and it was approved by the city of College Station and the TABC, I saw no reason not to issue the license."

Willy Madden, one of the owners of Texadelphia Sandwiches, said he is not depending on beer sales for the restaurant's success. He said beer sales at the Austin location make up only 2 percent of total sales.

Madden's intention for the College Station location is to create a welcoming restaurant environment for families and students.

"My place in Houston on Sunday afternoon is packed with people who are there with their kids," Madden said, "some of which have just come from church."

Charles Anderson, the Senior Pastor of the Methodist Church, said selling alcohol is not necessary if Madden is gearing toward a family atmosphere.

"If anyone can go, then alcohol would be superior and they would not need to have it," he said. "I applaud the intention, but I question the reality."

Madden said Texadelphia Sandwiches is a restaurant and not a bar.

"Once I get up and running and they see the type of establishment I will have, they will be embarrassed and ashamed they made such a big deal about it," Madden said.

Anderson said the restaurant itself is not a threat, it contributes to an existing problem.

"This is an entire Northgate issue — not a Texadelphia issue," he said. "Texadelphia is just 5 inches off on a 20-foot flood."

Dr. Bob Mayfield, Director of the Baptist Student Center, said plans for the expansion of Northgate discouraging to the church community.

"Only time can tell," he said. "But they have not convinced me that Northgate is church-friendly."

Madden said Texadelphia Sandwiches will try an exception to the typical Northgate scene.

"I intend to enforce very strictly that no one will be able to walk out with any bottles," he said. "The way the place is set up, I or the manager will be watching the front door so I do not think it will be a problem."

CAMAC

A dinner banquet Saturday night will feature Latino writer Victor Villasenor. His novel, Rain of Gold, about the struggle of living between two cultures, will be made into an ABC television movie.

A diverse sampling of entertainers including Ballet Folklorico and the Aggie Wranglers will perform.

Aguirre said 300 to 400 delegates will attend the weekend conference.

"People that come to our conference, whether they are Latino or of another race, will have ideas of different cultures," Aguirre said.

Raya said she hopes the delegates will broaden their knowledge of Latino culture and meet other delegates.

"We want our students to see that there's a value of us (Latinos) and to accept that," Raya said.

"Whether they agree or disagree with their opinions, Aguirre said Latinos need to unify to help each other advance in society.

"It's really difficult because there are so many ethnicities," Aguirre said. "It's hard to have a unified voice because each of these people came from different backgrounds."

Raya said she wants the conference to serve as a medium for Latinos to overcome the obstacles they face.

"The only way we can overcome obstacles is to become educated," Raya said.

Conference fees are $30 for A&M students, $40 for non-A&M students and $50 for non-students. For more information, contact Lorena Raya at 845-1515.

UPD

Made up of 3 sworn officers, the group strives to inform the public on crime prevention through common sense.

The members earned the 1995 Outstanding Crime Prevention Unit award for an institution of higher education.

The UPD has also received two President's Meritorious Service Awards and the annual Mothers Against Drunk Driving award, given to the officer making the most DWI arrests during the year.

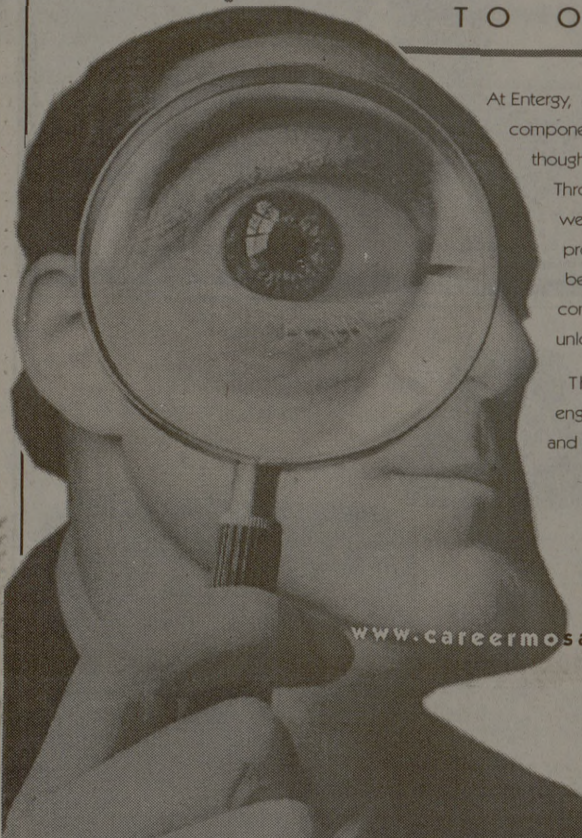

UPD also participates in several community charities, including the Rape Crisis Center, Scotty's House for abused children, the Salvation Army and Phoebe's Home for battered women.

Wiatt said the department concentrates on charities helping victims.

Lt. Russ Kline has been police A&M for 17 years. He said the part of his job is helping the public while the worst part is dealing with the criminal element.

"We seem to be looked on favorably (by students and faculty) Kline said. "We try to get into the University as much as possible and I think they feel pretty safe."
