Cyclones look forward to UCLA

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) — Next stop for Iowa State: San Antonio. Next opponent: UCLA, the most famous four letters in college basketball, a team that still has most of the key players from its 1995 national championship club.

A formidable task indeed for the Cyclones, but one that also has some side benefits.

"I'm just glad to get to where it's warm," Iowa State guard Jacy Holloway said. "I'm also excited to keep playing and I'm glad that my season and career isn't done."

Iowa State earned a berth against UCLA in the Midwest Regional semifinals with a 67-66 victory over Cincinnati on Saturday. The Cyclones (22-8) will play the Bruins (23-7) at the Alamodome on Thursday night.

It's the first appearance in the round of 16 for Iowa State since 1986 and the first ever for coach Tim Floyd.

"I'm excited certainly as a first, but the main reason I'm excited is I don't want to leave this basketball team right now," Floyd said. "I just love working with them every single day. It's going to be really tough telling this group goodbye."

"Fortunately, we'll be able to practice with them another week."

Second-seeded UCLA advanced with a 96-83 victory over Xavier. The Bruins have eliminated Iowa State from the NCAA tournament twice in recent years.

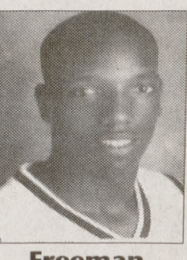

LONGHORNS

Coppin State, which became one of only three No. 15 seeds to ever win a tournament game with a win over South Carolina on Friday, trailed by 10 at the break. But the Eagles opened the second half with a 10-4 run led by guard Danny Singletary, who had two steals, took a charge and converted a 3-point play after a layup in a 2:30 span.

Guard Antoine Brockington's fallaway 3-point shot with 13:17 left gave Coppin State its first lead, at 56-53, since the first half-minute of the game.

Freeman then scored 12 straight points for Texas (18-11) to put the Longhorns ahead 67-61. Brockington responded with back-to-back dunks, one off a diving Singletary steal, to make the score 75-73 with four minutes left.

Freeman

Brockington finished with 27 points on 11-of-15 shooting to lead Coppin State, a Baltimore school so small it had to borrow a band from nearby Morgan State for the tournament.

The crowd at the Civic Arena favored smaller but feistier Coppin State over the cocky Longhorns and gave the Eagles and coach Ron "Fang" Mitchell a standing ovation on their way to the locker room. Texas' Brandy Perryman had yelled before the game to Eagles' fans, "You better cheer now."

The Longhorns shot 58 percent in the game's first 13:33 and turned the ball over only once in that span, compared with Coppin State's seven. Brockington scored the game's first points, but Texas then had a 15-5 run capped by Dennis Jordan's uncontested layup.

Warrick's 3-pointer pulled the Eagles (22-9) within 10 at 38-29 in the first half, and Singletary's layup off his own steal and subsequent jumper made it 42-39 at 3:34. Texas responded with eight points, including Jordan's tip-in and free throw with 25 seconds left, to lead 49-39 at the half.

MADNESS

Against the Fighting Illini (22-10), UTC finished with a 20-4 spurt to put the game away. The Mocs became only the second No. 14 seed to reach the final 16, joining Cleveland State in 1986.

Willie Young led UTC with 15 points and the Mocs held a commanding 39-21 advantage on the boards.

Utah 77, North Carolina-Charlotte 58

All-American Keith Van Horn had 27 points and eight rebounds, and Michael Doleac scored 18 as Utah's quick big men wore down North Carolina-Charlotte.

Ben Caton added 12 points for the Utes (28-3), who won their 13th straight and reached the final 16 for the second straight year.

Tremaine Gardner led the 49ers (22-9) with 14 points, Dimingus Bundy had 11 and Shanderic Downs 10. Alexander Kuehl had nine points and 11 rebounds.

Stanford 72, Wake Forest 66

Knight got the best of Tim Duncan, and Stanford ended the Wake Forest All-American's quest for a national championship.

Duncan scored 18 points and had 20 rebounds but managed just four points and five rebounds in the second half. Knight scored 19 points for Stanford (22-7).

It was the first time in six games at Tucson that a lower seed won. Stanford, which had not advanced beyond the second round since winning the NCAA title in 1942, was seeded sixth and Wake Forest (24-7) third.

Louisville 64, New Mexico 63

DeJuan Wheat, playing with a shoulder injury that required a second cortisone shot in five days, led the Cardinals (25-8) with 22 points. New Mexico (25-8) had a chance to win but David Gibson badly missed a driving, over-the-layup with 2.3 seconds left.

It will be the fourth trip to the round of 16 in five seasons to Louisville. The Cardinals got a break when New Mexico's Keith Thomas fouled out by elbowing Damion Dantzler on the first of Nate Johnson free throws with 3:45 left. Johnson and Dantzler made four free throws, opening the way to six points.

Clemson 65, Tulsa 59

Clemson shot just 32 percent but held Shea Seals, Tulsa's career scoring leader, to five points in the second half.

Terrell McIntyre and Mike Code combined for 31 second-half points while Seals spent most of the game on the bench after drawing his fourth foul early in the second half.

Seals, who became the school's leading scorer during Tulsa's first-round 81-52 victory over Boston University, shot 4-for-11.

Clemson (23-9) shot just 18-for-48 from the field, but Tulsa (24-10) kept the Tigers in the game by making 13-of-28 free throws.

Minnesota 76, Temple 57

Sam Jacobson hit four of Minnesota's 10 zone-busting 3-pointers and the top-seeded Gophers cruised past No. 9 seed Temple.

The Gophers (29-3) did exactly what they promised against the feared matchup zone of Temple, which held Mississippi to a Midwest Regional-record low of 4 points in the first round.

Jackson was 4-for-8 from behind the 3-point arc and Charles Thomas was 3-for-6. Together, the Gophers hit 10-of-23 3-pointers while holding the Owls (20-11) to 31 percent shooting.
