

Aggies cage Bears, 5-2

By DENNIS RAMIREZ
THE BATTALION

The Texas A&M Men's Tennis Team defeated Baylor University, 5-2, under the lights at the Omar Smith Tennis Center last night.

The Aggies got off to the early lead by capturing the elusive doubles point, which has given them problems in the past.

A&M Head Coach Tim Cass said going into singles play, with the doubles point under their belt, was a big advantage.

"Doubles play dictates a lot, especially in close matches," Cass said. "Having the doubles point really helped us going into singles and gave us a mental advantage. [Last night] was one of our better matches as far as completeness and everybody playing at a decent level."

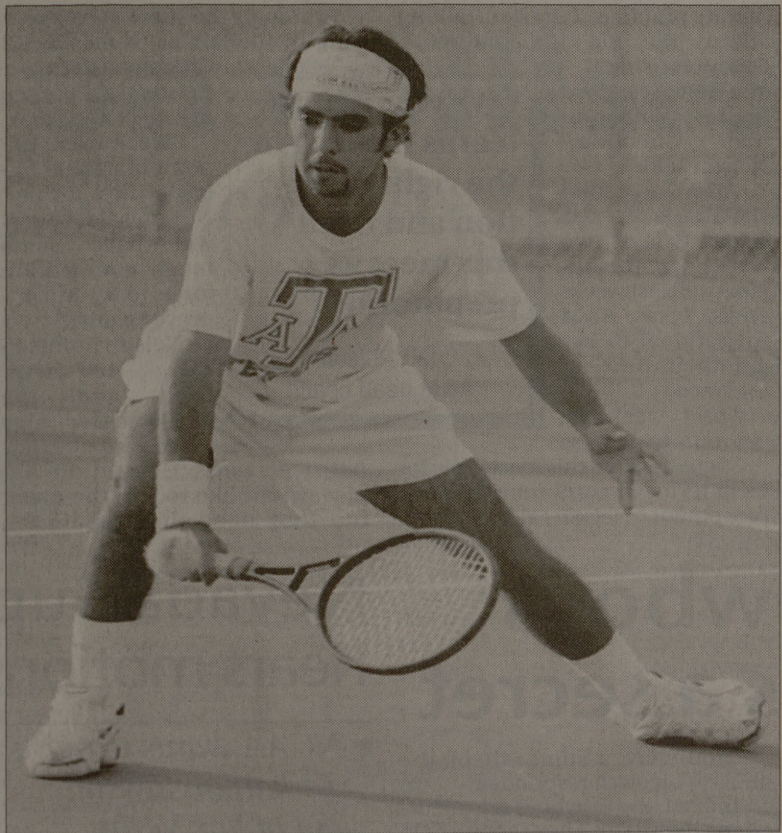

With doubles out of the way, it was open play for junior netter Carlos Tori, as he crushed his opponent, 6-2, 6-3. While the modest Tori said it was not as easy as it may have seemed, he is happy for the whole team.

"Things felt well for me but it was a hard match and I think I got a little more lucky," Tori said. "Things worked out well for the team tonight because they have worked really hard and I am glad because we are tired of everybody saying that we suck and that we aren't good enough. We won [last night] with our hearts."

And winning with their hearts proved to be very powerful as the team witnessed strong and consistent play from all the spots.

Freshman Gonzalo Anderson subdued his opponent in straight sets as well (6-1, 6-1) and helped seal the win for the Aggies early on.

"I just tried to go out there and stay focused," Anderson said. "I made it a point to win every point in the match and I was able to execute. Psychologically the doubles point did help us to come up with the win. This victory will definitely give us the confidence needed to face a strong Texas team."

As the Aggies improved to 8-11 on the season and 3-4 in Big 12 play, the University of Texas now awaits the Aggies Saturday afternoon.

Cass said he is just happy for the win and is ready for the Longhorns to come to town.

"I am glad that we were able to come out tonight and pick up the win," Cass said. "We needed the win for NCAA purposes and it is great for the guys. We really haven't thought about Texas much, but I know how they (Texas) are welcomed here."

SPORTS BRIEFS

Aggie soccer set to play Lightning

The Texas A&M Soccer Team will conclude its spring exhibition season with a game Sunday against the Texas Lightning semi-pro team from Dallas. Kickoff is slated for 1 p.m. and will take place at the Aggie Soccer Complex on A&M's West Campus.

The Lightning are the 1996 National runner up in the USWISL semi-professional league and features many former college standouts including Texas A&M's Yvette Okler and Allison Buckley.

The Aggies have won two eight-a-side tournaments and lost an exhibition game against a boys' team on a controversial penalty kick.

TaeKwonDo picks up medals at State

The A&M TaeKwonDo team traveled to Dallas April 6th to the 1997 Texas State TaeKwonDo Championships. Of the eight members competing, six won medals. John Garnett and Zach Watson won gold medals in sparring, and Kim Hess, Amanda Douglass and Arron

Gerdes each brought home silver medals. Rigo Ramirez won a bronze medal in sparring.

The team will perform a demonstration on Saturday, April 19th from 12 to 1 p.m. in front of Rudder Fountain. There will be a drawing held for various prizes.

Rockies' Galarraga fractures left hand

CHICAGO (AP) — Andres Galarraga, hit by a pitch a day earlier, has a fractured left hand and the Colorado Rockies first baseman was out of the lineup for Wednesday's game with the Chicago Cubs.

He will be examined in Denver.
