Faculty backs professor's right

AUSTIN (AP) — As some students, state lawmakers and others call for his ouster, University of Texas law professor Lino Graglia is getting support from those who defend his rights of free speech.

The university's Faculty Council issued a resolution saying it believes in "academic freedom, tenure and the right of faculty members to speak as individuals with the protections accorded by the Constitution.

Graglia sparked controversy last week when he told a news conference that blacks and Mexican Americans can't compete with whites and tend to come from cultures "in which failure is not looked upon in disgrace."

The 67-year-old professor has been teaching at UT since 1966. At a meeting Monday, the Faculty Council approved a resolution on free speech and diversity. While defending Graglia's rights, the resolution initially also proposed to say that the Faculty Council deplores views that "denigrate the academic qualifications of minority students." But that section was revised after objections were raised.

"This is a very troublesome resolution," said psychology professor Joe Horn. "It says, we have free speech but watch what you say. ... I think we're taking a serious step back to qualify academic freedom in this way.

The resolution was changed to say that the council "strongly supports the value of diversity in higher education.

Graglia also received support from a campus rally sponsored by the Young Conservatives of Texas, during which several students jun his defense.

"I wish his critics would debate him on sues, instead of conducting this characte sination by sound bite," said Mark Paredes ond-year law student.

'Nobody has said, 'Graglia, you're w cause of studies X, Y and Z.' ... All they'w Our feelings are hurt'," Paredes said.

Sonia Mohammed, chairwomanofth conservatives groups, condemned callsb lawmakers to remove Graglia.
