Helping Industry Help the World

It takes a lot to satisfy the needs of five billion people. The world's manufacturers meet that challenge by relying on advanced processes — automated processes, that turn out food, paper, automobiles, pharmaceuticals and thousands of other products every day.

Rockwell Automation works with these industries to keep the world's factories running at top production. We do it by supplying more than 500,000 automation products from four top brands. And by maintaining an expansive global network of professionals providing training, service and sales assistance.

That kind of customer commitment means we're always looking for more good people. To learn about the challenging career opportunities at Rockwell Automation, visit our web page, or contact your campus placement office.
