BYU cornerback killed

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Terrence Harvey, a cornerback for Brigham Young, was killed in a highway accident and two teammates were injured when their car tried to pass another vehicle and flipped several times.

Harvey, a 21-year-old sophomore from Las Vegas, was pronounced dead at Utah Valley Regional Medical Center following the accident on Interstate 15 near Provo about 9 p.m. Monday, the Utah Highway Patrol said. "We are shocked and saddened by the loss of an outstanding young man who had such great promise," BYU coach LaVell Edwards said. "Our thoughts and prayers are with his family." Treated for minor injuries and released was junior defensive back Tony Fields, 20, also of Las Vegas. Freshman defensive back Roderick Foreman, 17, of Los Angeles, was in fair condition and probably will have hand surgery today, said hospital spokesman Anton Garrity. The three were traveling between 80 and 90 mph in Nissan Pathfinder when Fields, the driver, attempted to pass on the right and lost control. The car rolled several times, ejecting Harvey, said a patrol dispatcher who asked not to be identified. The dispatcher said it is too early to determine if alcohol was involved. Harvey transferred to BYU three weeks ago from Victor Valley Community College in Victorville, Calif. He made his first appearance in the starting lineup Saturday at left cornerback for BYU's 19-16 victory over SMU. Fields and Foreman also played in the game.
