OSU takes media blitz in stride

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — One game doesn't make a season, although it has sure stirred things up around Oklahoma State.

A 42-16 victory over Texas on Saturday moved the Cowboys into the Associated Press rankings for the first time since 1988. It also made coach Bob Simmons a hot commodity — media from around the country called Monday wanting a piece of his time.

It is all new for a program that has not had a winning season since Barry Sanders' won a Heisman Trophy for the Cowboys in 1988.

"New is good," Simmons said at his weekly news conference. "It's just how you handle it. I've been there before in my experience, and I'm just going to try to relate to my team how you deal with the newness of being 5-0 and being successful."

Simmons was an assistant for eight years at Colorado and owns a national championship ring from his time there. His Oklahoma State team is not nearly as deep, talented or experienced as most of the Buffalo teams he coached, so there is reason to wonder how the Cowboys will handle things this week.

Before last weekend, Simmons said, the Cowboys were simply considered an improved team. The victory over Texas — a team that last year beat OSU by 57 points — gave Oklahoma State legitimacy, he said.

"I think this game answered the questions for a lot of people," OSU safety Trent Alexander said.

It also, no doubt, raised expectations. Oklahoma State (5-0, 2-0 Big 12) is ranked No. 20 and now people are talking about the prospects of an eight or even nine-victory season.

"I think our kids expect to win, too, and that's the most important thing," Simmons said. "I think they know how, they've proved that. Now what they've got to prove is can you continue that? That is the challenge."

They will get an idea Saturday night when No. 24 Colorado (0-1) visits. The Buffaloes struggled all year, particularly offense — they have just one offensive touchdown in the quarters.

But Simmons believes Colorado is much better than the record indicates. He expects the Buffaloes passing game to provide a shot for a defense that has shown stop the run, but has not really challenged through the air.

He also expects the Cowboys to be able to wade through hoopla and keep their mind business at hand.

"I would hope this team matured enough that they know how to get to be 5-0 was the great practice habits and to the discipline of practicing the fundamentals," Simmons said. "That will be my job as the coach, and my assistants' job
