Mike Caruso, assistant athletic director for promotions and operations, said construction projects in Bryan-College Station, such as the work on Texas Avenue and George Bush Drive, were the main reason for creating the Go With the Green task force.

Lomax said the group wanted to ease traffic flow on Texas Avenue during the construction project.

"We realized there were benefits to taking control of special-event traffic," he said.

Elmer Schneider, associate director of University

Police Department, said College Station police officers help UPD regulate the flow of pedestrians crossing Wellborn as a part of the program.

The cooperative effort allows some UPD officers to perform routine business instead of directing traffic.

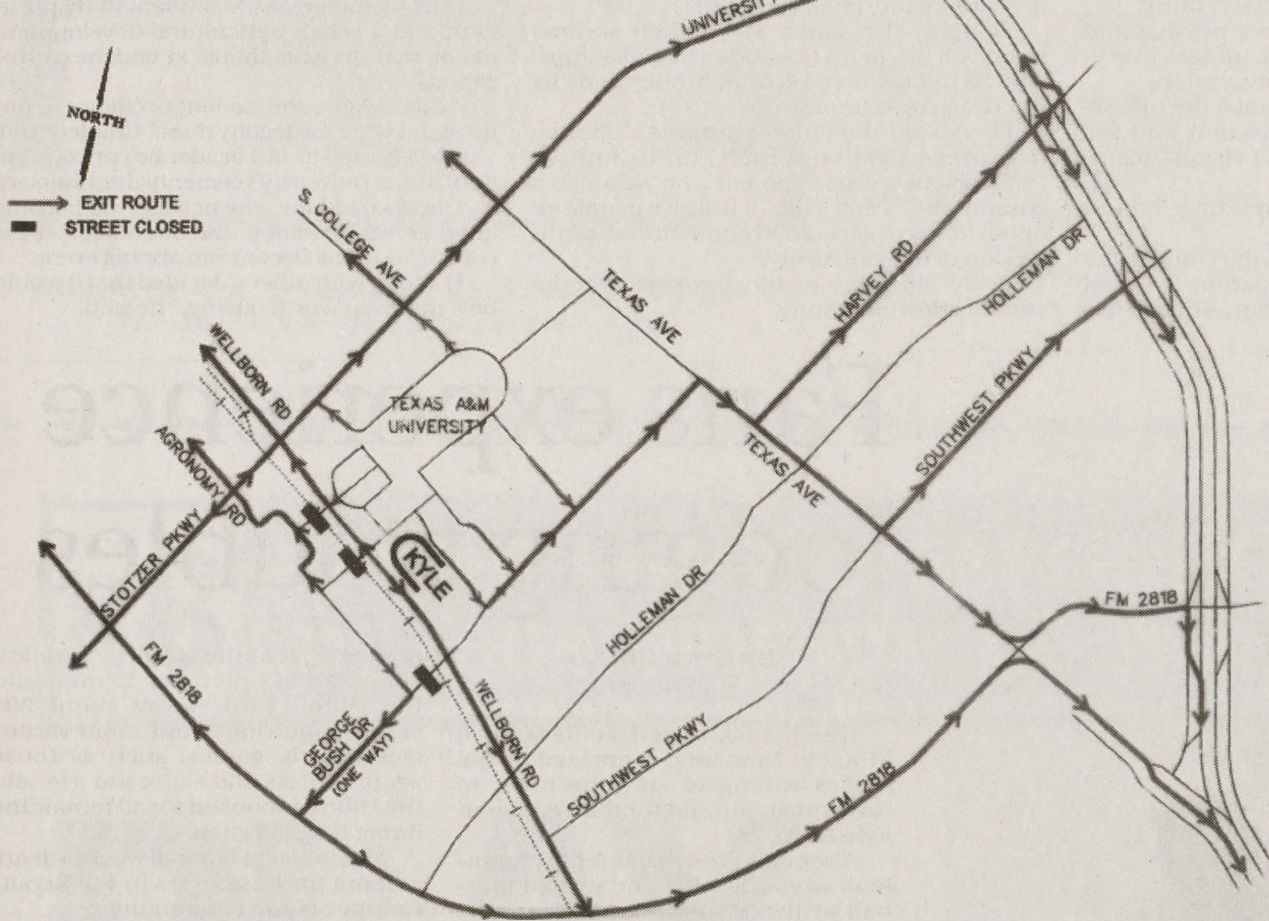

Schneider said Parking, Traffic and Transportation Services has added to the program by making sure parking areas are used efficiently. He said PTTS watches parking areas and reroutes traffic around full parking lots.

Lomax said the athletic and PTTS shuttle bus program for games also helps to keep some cars off campus.

Caruso said so far the program has worked well.

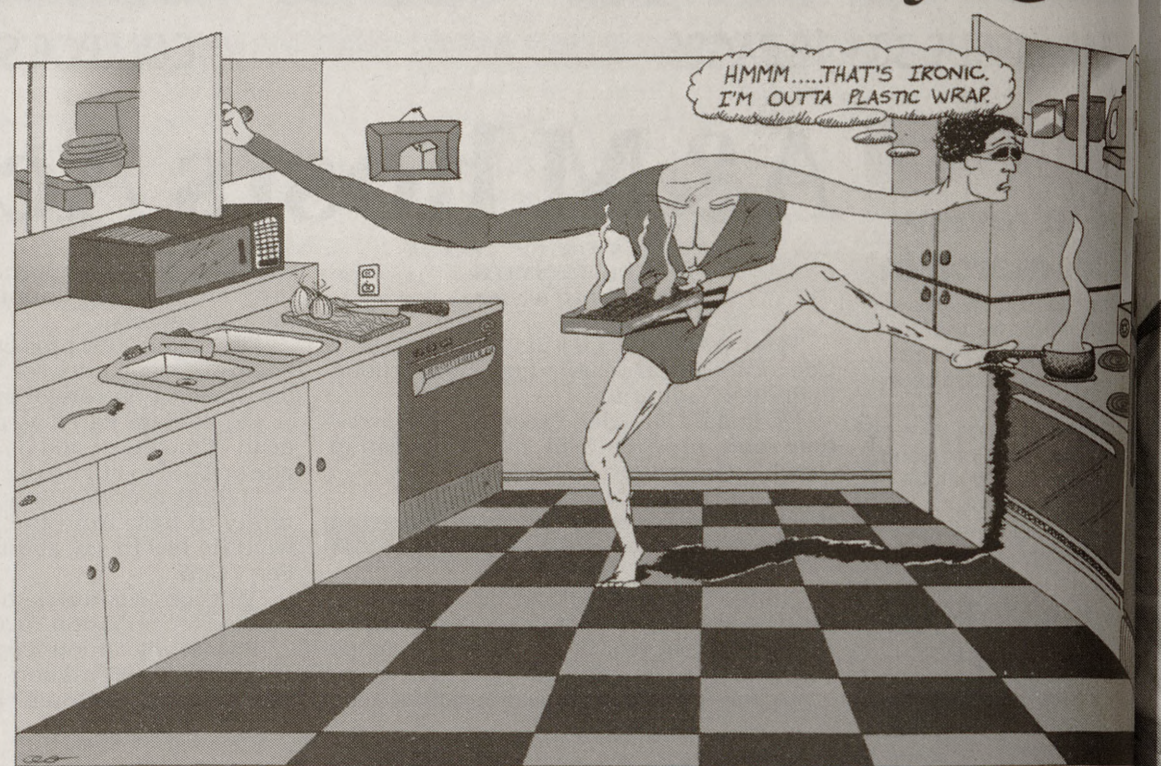

"I've heard nothing but good reports [about Go with the Green]."
