Jackson joins African tribe

PHOKENG, South Africa (AP) — The King of Pop is now an African tribesman.

Michael Jackson, with ex-wife Lisa Marie Presley and her two children nearby, was made an honorary member of the Bafokeng Ka Bakwena (People of the Crocodile) tribe Saturday.

Dressed in a military-style jacket adorned with gold badges, Jackson walked slowly as Lisa Marie clutched his arm and ululating women lined a path in this town 90 miles northwest of Johannesburg.

Since his divorce from Lisa Marie, Jackson has married nurse Debbie Rowe, who gave birth in February to their son, Prince Michael Jackson Jr.

Richards does not plan to retire

NEW YORK (AP) - Keith Richards, in the middle of a 33-city Rolling Stones tour, isn't considering retirement — in part, he says, because women still find him attractive.

"No one would be asking about retiring if we were old black guys," the 53-year-old Richards said in Sunday's
