JACK O'PIERCE

wednesday November 5

After a decade of recording and performing, JACK O'PIERCE has amicably decided to part ways. From their early days at Carney's to the last five years of headlining venues like the Aggie Final, Texas A&M has been one of the countries biggest supporters of JACK O'PIERCE. Cary Pierce and Jack O'Neil have decided to say thanks to their friends in College Station with a very special show consisting of an early all-acoustic set followed by their traditional full-band show. On Nov. 5th, in the intimate setting of Shadow Canyon, COLLEGE STATION WILL EXPERIENCE A DECADE OF JACK O'PIERCE...

One night only!
Tickets available at Marooned Records, Dixie Chicken and Rothors or call 1-800-333-7188

Prospective parents must turn in references and biographical letters that birth parents can read. They also must attend monthly meetings that prepare them to raise a child.

She said she helps about 15 Texas A&M students find adoptive parents for their babies each year.

One of the students Lucas worked with was Kelly. Kelly said she and Lucas became good friends during her pregnancy.

Lucas gave Kelly letters and references to look through. Kelly said that when she found out she was having a girl, she knew which family she wanted to adopt her baby.

"I had certain qualities I was looking for in a family," she said. "I wanted to give my little girl to people who were financially set so the mom could stay at home, and I didn't want them to have any natural children. I didn't want my daughter to ever feel different."

Kelly said she was picky when she chose a family for her baby, but she found parents who matched everything she wanted for her baby.

"A letter this couple had written kept grabbing my attention," she said. "I read it, and I loved them."

Lucas set up a meeting for Kelly and the prospective parents, and they immediately hit it off.

"We had a fairy tale adoption with the level of openness that both of us were comfortable with."

They began to discuss plans for the baby's future.

"One of my big concerns was that not only was I giving up my child," she said, "but I was giving up my parents' grandchild. I wanted my parents to get to know my daughter."

Kelly asked the adoptive mom to be present at her baby's birth.

"Since she was going to be raising this baby," she said, "I figured she should see her child come into this world."

Kelly said she spent the hours with her baby holding it bonding with her.

"I knew if I kept her any longer would be harder to let go," she said. "But when I looked at her, I knew it was the right thing for her. I knew I would be happy and that I had made the right decision."

Kelly and her parents have a lot of time with the baby. She attended the baby's christening has even baby-sat her.

"I had bonded with her so much," she said. "We had a tale adoption with the level of openness that both of us were comfortable with."

Kelly said she encouraged parents to look into their options to explore the concept of adoption. Her decision to rule out adoption was because she did not know how it would affect her in the future, she said. Kelly said she was not sure if an abortion would tear her apart.

"This is something that will be me for the rest of my life," she said.

"The decision was not an easy one, but I get to see my daughter grow up and be incredibly happy."
