Search gets underway in Texas coach

AUSTIN (AP) — Some argue that the Texas footballing job comes with a season warmed to temperature in a noon on a summer day in Austin.

Fred Akers won 73 percent of his games over 10 seasons he was fired after his first loss in 1986.

Favorite son David Mackovic, who played for Akers' predecessor Darrell Royal, put Texas in a five in 1990 then was fired after a 5-6 season in 1991.

Mackovic

On Monday, Texas will name its new coach. Mackovic's successor will be named by the end of the week.

"Until official calls are made and you go through the process, it's hard to tell what a coach's interest is," Hicks said.

Hicks praised Mackovic for his championships, for improving recruiting in Texas and California and for increased graduation rates.

"We've become one of the worst defensive teams in the nation over a long period of time," Hicks said.

"The on-field leadership was very erratic," Hicks added. "When a team loses 66-3 against a team like UCLA, it's favored to beat shows for whatever reason."

"We are all realistic to know that college football has a lot of parity, but the University of Texas has been out of the hunt for national championship for close to 20 years, and that's just too long."

When asked if many coaches would want to face the pressure of Texas, athletic director DeLoach Dadds said, "I think there are coaches who want this job."

"It's a tough job, but it's a place where I think we can have a top program year in and year out," Dadds said.

Texas regent Lowell Lebermann Jr. of Austin said, "Texas is a tough place to coach, but it's hard to coach at any university."

"We go out there and try to win in everything, in academics, research and athletics, and we will continue to do that."

No bones are made about the fact that the football program's success is directly related to the enthusiasm of students and the money given by key financial backers.

"In this part of the country, football is important to getting alumni and students excited about their involvement in the university, to getting donations, which are important to the shrinking budgets of schools," Hicks said.

Dadds will chair the search committee and will be joined by Hicks, Royal and three of his former players: Bob Moses of Houston, Doug English of Austin and Alfred Jackson of Houston.
