Lewinsky anxious to cut deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Anxious to cut a deal for immunity, the lawyer for Monica Lewinsky said Sunday his 24-year-old client "will tell all that she knows" to Whitewater prosecutors. "The chips will fall as they may," he said.

Attorney William Ginsburg said he has verbally indicated to investigators what Lewinsky will tell them in exchange for immunity from prosecution.

"I will remain in Washington as long as it takes to see that the truth in every detail, wherever it may fall, comes out," Ginsburg said. Negotiations of such a sensitive nature could take weeks.

In the first hint of an eye witness, ABC reported that the president and Lewinsky were caught in an intimate encounter in a private area of the White House in the spring of 1996, shortly before the White House intern was moved to a job at the Pentagon.

The office of prosecutor Kenneth

Starr declined comment on the ABC report. If true, such a witness would provide important corroborating evidence for Lewinsky's account if she reverses her current denial of an affair with the president. In secretly-recorded conversations, Lewinsky had said she believed "nobody saw anything happen between us."

At the White House, the first couple tried to maintain an air of normalcy, attending services at Foundry United Methodist Church as usual. Clinton rehearsed his State of the Union speech and planned to watch the Super Bowl with family and the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

"One thing that isn't going on and that's discussions about any resignation," Rahm Emanuel, a top White House adviser, said.

"We are dying to tell the story, but we cannot. We are frozen in place" until his client gets total immunity, Ginsburg said. Lewinsky has denied having a sexual relationship with Clinton in an affidavit in the Paula

Jones sexual harassment

Clinton loyalists are for having former White staffer Linda Tripp who could secretly record a with Lewinsky.

Ginsburg did not releasing his television appearance a source familiar with has said Lewinsky is prosecutors that she the president.

Lewinsky's lawyer be unwise for the White Clinton's personal lawyer the former White House the unstable, noting that over a long period of time around the president.

"How could they have get jobs, including with companies, large companies was so unstable?" Ginsburg

"You would think I was she was in government would have noted this. day," Ginsburg said.

GAS PRICES

Other factors influencing the price of gasoline include state and federal taxes, refining and marketing costs, operation costs and crude oil costs.

Jay Taylor, a spokesperson for the U.S. Department of Energy, said taxes are the single largest component cost of gasoline, amounting to 42.6 cents per gallon, including 18.4 cents per gallon in federal taxes, 22 cents per gallon in weighted average state taxes, and an estimated 2 cents per gallon in local taxes.

"The major reason for the price variation among and countries is the difference in taxation." "Because crude oil costs are similar around the world, er factors that influence the price around the world are differences in technology."

Gasoline costs in the United States are above the international average, according to the 1996 report. State and federal taxes totaled about 24 cents a liter in 1997, compared to an average of 22 cents in Canada. Transportation costs and the number of outlets are often higher in other countries.
