Chicago Cubs legend Caray dies of stroke

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Harry Caray, who took millions of fans out to the ball game on radio and television, died Wednesday, four days after collapsing at a Valentine's Day dinner. He was believed to be 77.

So ... Happy Anniversary and-So. That's always been the way of acknowledging the way he wrote in his 1989 autobiography, Holy Cow.

Another favorite Caray phrase was "It might be a home run, but it's a home run!" he would shout "Cubs win! Cubs win!" after each Chicago victory. He said he developed the phrase as a semiprofessional ball toomer.

Caray

"We're going to miss old Harry," Hall of Famer Stan Musial said. "He was always the life of the party, the life of baseball."

Caray had a heart attack Saturday at a nightclub-restaurant while with his wife, Dutchie, near their winter home. He died of brain damage caused by the attack, said Harlan Corenman, Eisenhower Medical Center spokesman.

A broadcaster since 1941, Caray became a household name through his Chicago Cubs' games for WGN-TV, carried nationally by many cable systems. He was immediately recognizable for his thick, oversized glasses and raspy, sing-along rendition of "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" over the public address system during the seventh-inning stretch.

Hillary Rodham Clinton, long Cubs fan. "And I hope she's doing a seventh-inning stretch in heaven."

Jack Buck, also a member of the announcer's wing of the Hall of Fame, remembered auditing Caray for the job he got with the Cardinals in 1953.

"They sent me a tape of him," Buck said. "And I thought, 'No way I could do that. I'm only one guy who could be cast like him.'"

Added longtime announcer Vin Scully, "He could be critical, contentious and bombastic, or he could be lovable and full of praise. People in the bleachers, as well as the man in the box seat, they shared their love of ball with a true fan."

Vikings' Randle makes NFL history with deal

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — With NFL teams throwing around their newfound TV billions like so much Monopoly money, John Randle might not reign long as the highest-paid defensive player in league history.

He also broke Alan Page's team record for defensive touchdowns with his fifth consecutive Pro Bowl start.

NFL Defensive Player of the Year Dana Stubblefield of San Francisco could oust Randle soon. Stubblefield's agent said he's working on a contract that will be the blockbuster of an offseason filled with blockbuster deals.

Since free agency began Friday, Randle twice turned down offers believed to be in the million range from the Vikings. The Miami Dolphins were the first to make an offer.

One thing is certain about Randle, the Minnesota Vikings' one-of-a-kind defensive tackle who agreed to a $32.5 million, five-year contract: No one can match the unique blend of power, speed, desire and humility that has made Randle one of the best pass rushers ever.

He headed home to Tuesday after the Vikings upped their offer. Never a fan of public relations, Randle was unavailable for comment Tuesday.

"There aren't too many John Randles," Vikings vice president Jeff Diamond said Tuesday. "If there's any guy I'm not worried about performing and playing with the intensity he's displayed, it's John Randle."

The contract spoke for itself. He headed home to Tuesday after the Vikings upped their offer. Never a fan of public relations, Randle was unavailable for comment Tuesday.

The NFL's sack leader since 1991 with 84 1/2, Randle cashed in on his steady dominance and the league's mammoth TV contract Tuesday, agreeing to the record deal, which includes a $10 million signing bonus.

The contract spoke for itself. He headed home to Tuesday after the Vikings upped their offer. Never a fan of public relations, Randle was unavailable for comment Tuesday.

The yearly average of $6.5 million blows away the $4.7 million average of Buffalo defensive end Bruce Smith, and the total value of Randle's package eclipses the $29.75 million Kansas City gave to linebacker Derrick Thomas in a seven-year deal last year.

Randle's agent, Gary Uberstine, said only quarterbacks Steve Young of San Francisco ($49.2 million, an $8.2 million average) and Brett Favre of Green Bay ($47.3 million, $6.75 million average) will earn more per season on average than Randle.

"Clearly we could not have done this as a football team if we didn't have the caliber of John Randle," said Diamond, who worked out the deal amid a flurry of other negotiations. "Really, it had to do whatever we could make sure the deal got done."

"We feel terrific that we were able to eclipse that age-old barrier between quarterbacks and the truly marquee players at impact positions," Uberstine said. "We've never felt that it was appropriate that quarterbacks should make more than players like John Randle just because they're quarterbacks."

Expected to command a $4 million a season, Evans scheduled to visit Baltimore Jacksonville. Diamond said Evans could make a decision soon in the next day or two.

An undrafted free agent who signed with the Vikings from Texas A&I in 1990, Randle led the NFL with a career-best 15 1/2 sacks in 1997 and earned All-Pro honors for the third straight season. He also broke Alan Page's team record for defensive touchdowns with his fifth consecutive Pro Bowl start.

Since free agency began Friday, Randle twice turned down offers believed to be in the million range from the Vikings. The Miami Dolphins were the first to make an offer.

He headed home to Tuesday after the Vikings upped their offer. Never a fan of public relations, Randle was unavailable for comment Tuesday.

Minnesota also auditions four kickers Tuesday, Chris and Chip Lohmiller most prominent among them.
