"Old Navy is unique because it provides one-stop shopping for family clothing," Graham said. "We offer a variety of products to meet every need."

Graham said Old Navy chose to open in College Station because teenagers and young adults appreciate the store, and there is a need for something a little different.

"College Station doesn't really have anything like Old Navy, so there is not a lot of competition," he said. Old Navy's low prices are another reason the store has become so popular, especially with college students. Allison Murray, a freshman business major, said she agrees Old Navy and students could benefit from the store's arrival.

"I think Old Navy will do well because it's the style of clothes college students wear, and at a price we can afford," Murray said.

Stephanie Scott, a sophomore biomedical engineering major, said Old Navy's prices are much better than many stores.

"The clothes at Old Navy are similar to those at the Gap, but they are less expensive," she said.

Graham said the store's opening date for Old Navy is 1, but hiring of employees will begin the week before spring break and continue the following
