ARTFEST '98

Hustler publisher indicted

CINCINNATI (AP) — Hustler magazine publisher Larry Flynt, who beat obscenity charges more than 20 years ago, was indicted Tuesday on more serious charges of selling obscene videotapes to a 14-year-old boy.

The 15-count indictment against Flynt and his brother includes charges of pandering obscenity. Flynt was convicted of that charge in 1977 for distributing Hustler in Cincinnati.

The conviction — detailed in last year's movie "The People vs. Larry Flynt" — was thrown out and Flynt was never retried.

But Tuesday's indictment also includes the charges of engaging in a pattern of corrupt activity and conspiracy to engage in a pattern of corrupt activity. Those charges carry possible penalties of two to eight years in prison, compared to a maximum year for a pandering obscenity charge.

The charges cite videos sold in Flynt's downtown bookstore.

"I'm not going to say whether Hustler is obscene," prosecutor Joseph Deters said. "This is about videos. He can sell whatever he wants. But if he sells obscene videos, obscene materials, he will be prosecuted."

Flynt said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press he did not know the circumstances of the alleged sale to the boy, but doubts he could be convicted for it because he was in California at the time.

He said his company has a policy of not selling adult materials to juveniles, and that he was surprised by the charges of engaging in a corrupt activity.
