Malone looks forward to pressure of finals rematch

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Once again, the Utah Jazz have placed their NBA championship hopes on the chiseled shoulders of Karl Malone.

If this is the year the Jazz end the Chicago Bulls' dynasty of the '90s, Utah must have a big series from their superstar power forward who endorses Rogaine, rides a Harley and is the proud new papa of a baby girl.

"The pressure on me personally? I don't think you guys even know," Malone said Tuesday after the Jazz's last practice before Wednesday night's series opener. "I realize I have to bring my 'A' game."

A year ago, in Utah's first trip to the finals, Malone admits the pressure got to him. He was trying to prove he deserved his MVP award and sometimes forced things.

"It was decent," he said of his play. "It wasn't outstanding or great or nothing. It was probably a C-plus or maybe a B as far as my thinking. I think with the MVP stuff, maybe I felt that instead of just playing my game."

Now, Malone said, he is much more relaxed.

"It's not an excitement attitude. It's not a don't care attitude. It's kind of in between," he said. "Sometimes it seems like I play my best when I have that kind of attitude."

Malone put a little more pressure on himself and his fellow Utah post players when he said, "This series is going to be won with our big guys."

"I'm going to issue that challenge right now to myself and to the other guys," Malone said. "Our guards have helped us big men a lot. It's our time now to return the favor. We don't disrespect their big guys, but we do feel we can do more to help our guards and small forwards out."

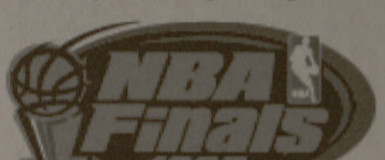

"If we're to win this series, our big guys have to do a great job on the boards, myself included, and we have to play a great defensive help game to help our guards out."

Chicago has no one to match up well with Malone, Luc Longley, bigger and slower, will start out defending him. Dennis Rodman also will get a turn. Last year, Brian Williams came off the bench, and his ability to run the court with Malone was a big reason the Bulls won the series in six games.

But Williams is gone, and no one on the Chicago bench seems able to fill that role.

"It's going to be tough. We're going to have to find some matchups for Malone," Scottie Pippen said. "He's definitely going to be able to get out and run on our big men, especially if Luc is guarding him, or Dennis, who wants to bang the boards and be a rebounder."

Fouls could be a big problem for the Bulls.

"One of the most important things for me to do is be aggressive out of the gate," Malone said. "Instead of settling for jump shots, maybe take it to them and hopefully get their big guys in foul trouble, get them back on their heels."

The Bulls know all too well that Malone can create a foul mood. He led the NBA in free throws attempted.

"It's really difficult to guard Karl Malone because the slightest touch and you're going to get a foul," Rodman said. "Here in Utah, you don't get any calls at all. There's nothing I can do except go out and play hard and try to throw him off his game."

The state or Rodman's unpredictable mind was a major subject of discussion as the Bulls arrived in Salt Lake City Tuesday.

Perceived to be pointing after he was removed from the starting lineup in the Eastern Conference finals, Rodman insisted Tuesday that he is in good spirits, be it as starter or reserve.

"I'm ready to go, brother," he said. "It's time to play, right?"

But coach Phil Jackson hasn't decided whether to start Rodman to the starting line.

"At this point, I would think about it for a long, long od of time and talk to Dennis, it, because I want Dennis to be better than it was in the game we played against his Jackson said.

Jackson said he didn't Rodman was pointing about removed from the starting line but it's clear the tattooed coach better when he starts.

"The one thing we have to have to have a Dennis rebounding and defending in this series," Jackson said. "Sever it takes, we'll reach accommodation in the next 24 hours."

The Bulls seem to be making their self-proclaimed underdogs.

"Everybody has written Pippen said.

But Jackson hasn't joined chorus. He's not conceding favored status to Utah, though the Jazz have the court advantage and, after a of the Los Angeles Lakers Western Conference finals, days of rest while the Bulls finish off Indiana until Sunday.

Jackson would point to Chicago and Michael Jordan five championships. Utah Malone have none.

"I think there's some sense for Utah because they've got guys who have been in the finals but once, last with a team that's won a games. I'm sure they've done about winning, but we they're capable of doing it remains to be seen."

And as for the number of predicting a Jazz triumph, said it's understandable.

The Jazz "have been modest in what they've done in this last series. So they're ed," he said. "And if I'm ting man, I'd probably be Jazz, too — if I didn't know thing about the Bulls."

Three other Aggies also received good news Tuesday as senior pitcher Ryan Rupe was selected in the sixth round by the Arizona Diamondbacks, senior catcher Scott Sandusky was selected in the eighth round by the Montreal Expos and junior third baseman Craig Kuzmic was selected in the eighth round by the Seattle Mariners.

Rupe finished his career at A&M with a 30-9 record with a 4.22 ERA and 281 strikeouts. In his only year at A&M, Kuzmic hit .316 with 25 home runs and had 72 RBIs.

"They really liked what they saw in him," Johnson said. "He will probably sign with them and if they have a specific need in an area, he should be able to contribute at some level immediately. It may take them (Kuzmic and Tyner) a while to adjust to the wooden bats, though."

Sandusky finished with a .310 average with 75 runs scored and 47 RBIs.

Chip Ambres and Rafael "Choo" Freeman, who had both signed letters of intent to play football at A&M, were also picked in the MLB draft. Ambres went to the Florida Marlins with the 27th pick in the first round and Freeman went to the Colorado Rockies in the supplemental draft.
