Fish

BY R. DELUNA CLINTON

"He has done some very bad things, but we don't have credible evidence that his actions subverted democratic government," he said. Clinton told reporters there was nothing he could do. "I have surrendered this," he said. "It is beyond my control. The Judiciary Committee will likely conduct hearings after the November congressional elections. Clinton said the inquiry has no effect on the outcome of the congressional race in this district. The House will decide whether to impeach Clinton. Clinton said he will not drop the charges.

Simel & Lewis

By Mell MAROON OUT

Steve Kragthorpe, A&M Offensive Coordinator Maroon Out was a great team motivator. "That was a great atmosphere out there and about that. That was a neat looking deal in the press box to see all those people wearing maroon. We have got to keep that thing going." Valentine said there have been a lot of questions regarding whether there are any more T-shirts, whether this is something that is going to last through the rest of the season. Valentine said there are no more T-shirts available present time but that the class councils are going to decide where to take the Maroon Out project.

ANIMAL SCIENCE

By GONZO & Co.

Ron Silvia, a city council member, said he believes the decision has positive aspects, but it is not a good permanent resolution for the city. He said his first concern in making the decision was the safety of the citizens, and his second concern was the integrity of the neighborhood. However, he said he does not believe the citizens of College Station should be inconvenienced by the neighborhood. "I am not completely satisfied with the decision," Silvia said. "I don't think it is a permanent solution. We can do better." Silvia said he wanted another major north-south corridor through the station. Since the station needs to be improved, he said he will continue to pursue a solution that benefits all citizens.

COMING OUT

"They don't always necessarily deal with sexual orientation issues but will help them with financial aid," Novak said. "ALLIES mainly helps provide students with resources in a comfortable environment." One of the officers of GLBTA said throughout the year, the organization holds panel presentations where professors can request a panel from GLBTA to go talk to their classes. "This helps disprove a lot of myths," the officer said. The officer said COW is an event that tries to promote awareness and understanding. "Through COW, we are not trying to come out there and shove it in people's faces to make them mad. We are just trying to gain a little more acceptance and make people realize that we are Aggies, too. I believe that anger comes from a lack of understanding, and so this week we are trying to let everyone see who we really are. However, through the years, I have seen the A&M campus become much more open and accepting, so I feel we are making a change towards the better."

CHAMPS

"The day was magical," Cathy Capps, the coordinator for the Letterman's Association, said. Shelton said Saturday was probably one of the greatest days in campus history with the victory over Nebraska, the success of the Maroon Out, and the presentation. "I am not completely satisfied with the decision," Silvia said. "I don't think it is a permanent solution. We can do better." Silvia said he wanted another major north-south corridor through the station. Since the station needs to be improved, he said he will continue to pursue a solution that benefits all citizens.
