NEWS BRIEFS

Former Student Registration due

The Office of the Vice President of Administration is accepting registration entries for the sixth annual Black Former Students reunion.

The reunion, celebrating 35 years of black students being admitted to the university, will be Feb. 5 to 7. It will feature workshops addressing current university issues and a career and networking expo. The cost of registration is $60 if forms are postmarked by Jan. 31 and $70 for on-site registration.

Bush to host leadership forum

Former President George Bush will host a leadership forum at the George Bush Presidential Conference Center Monday.

Attendance at the forum, "Definition of Leadership," is limited to campus organizations who were contacted, and between 700 and 800 tickets have been distributed to them.

Sheran Riley, assistant to President Bowen, said the event is limited and not publicized because President Bush wants it to be directed toward students.

Positions open for Student Senate

Eleven vacancies for the Student Senate were announced during Wednesday's meeting. Openings include senator positions for College of Engineering, Freshman, Northside, and Off-Campus constituencies. Applications are available today in the Student Govern-

KIMBRO

Kimbro's most recent book, Think and Grow Rich: A Black Choice, emphasizes money as not being the key to true success. Stephanie Erwin, conference chair and an accounting graduate student, said Kimbro will be concentrating his speech on maintaining finances.

"He teaches people not to live penny to penny," Erwin said.

Garrett said Kimbro stresses the importance of specialization in today's working environment.

"He talks about the importance of doing something that is your passion," Garrett said. "Things will fall into place if you do what you love."

The Jazz Poet's Society will follow the speech with a performance including a combination of classic jazz and a mixture of hip hop.

Fellowship Kickoff

Tim Austin, (closest to camera) a senior industrial distribution major, and Josiah Rogers, a junior political science major, praise and worship at the A&M Christian Fellowship Kickoff Thursday night in the MSC. AMCF hosts a rally at the beginning of each semester to worship through music and fellowship.

COMMISSIONER

Amy Magee, the student speaker of the Senate and a senior psychology major, is pleased with the change.

"We couldn't have picked a more competent person, although Chris Chase will be missed," she said.

Brian Minyard, executive vice president of the Senate, pointed McGill at the end of the fall term. Minyard said looking forward to the commissioner and believed change will have a positive impact on the Senate.

McGill will officially come as election commissioner at the next meeting and throughout the spring semester.
