ROTATIONAL SALES TRAINING PROGRAM

The Rotational Sales Program is an eight-twelve month training program that is designed to give you a strong foundation and understanding of our products, customers, distribution channels and philosophies. This is accomplished through group activities, individual assignments and skill building exercises. Initial assignments at the end of training are in outside sales with long term opportunities in Market Development, Sales Operations, Human Resources, Marketing, Communications and International Sales.

PROJECT ELECTRICAL/COMPUTER ENGINEERS

Project Electrical/Computer Engineers work as part of a cross-functional team organized around the development of a new product and with responsibility for carrying the product from original design concept through manufacturing the finished product. Using cutting edge technology, engineers work on electrical design as it applies to complex lighting and visual environment control systems. Extensive training with top design engineers, plus lectures and bench-side assistance from visiting professors, keep our engineers at the forefront of technology. A mentoring program for new hires along with continued learning through "Lutron University" enhances the professional and intellectual development of our employees.

Heroin trial begins

11 defendants face life sentences for deaths of 4 Plano youths involving 'black tar'

BEAUMONT (AP) — Jury selection got under way Tuesday in the federal trial of 11 people accused of distributing black tar heroin in the Dallas suburb of Plano, leading to four overdose deaths in five months.

About 80 potential jurors were called to the federal courthouse in Beaumont for questioning Tuesday. The trial, moved from Sherman at defense lawyers' request, is expected to last about four weeks.

In a 36-count indictment issued last summer, 29 people were accused of smuggling heroin and cocaine from Mexico in 1997 and selling it to juveniles and young adults in the Plano area.

Eighteen people have pleaded guilty. The latest to do so, 22-year-old Jose Antonio Pineda, pleaded guilty Monday to one count of using a telephone in the distribution of a controlled substance. Pineda, who had been charged with conspiracy and distribution, faces a maximum four-year prison term and $250,000 fine.

The 11 being tried face up to life in prison because of a rarely used federal sentencing enhancement that allows for the stiff punishment when prosecutors can trace a lethal dose of illegal drugs directly to the dealer.

Prosecutors allege the defendants used shoes with false compartments to smuggle the drugs across the border from Mexico. Once in Plano, the drugs were distributed from several locations, including a residence known as the "Blue House" and an open-air market.

From June 1997 through November 1997, four people who allegedly purchased heroin from the defendants died of overdoses. The victims were Erin Baker, 16; Wesley Scott, 19; Rob Hill, 19; and Milan Malina, 20, all of whom either lived in Plano or attended Plano schools.

Another 23-year-old man suffered serious bodily injury after ingesting heroin bought

Bush scheduled meeting with British leader

AUSTIN (AP) — George W. Bush, governor and potential presidential candidate, will meet next week with another profile guest, the head of Britain's Conservative Party.

BUSH

Bush also has invited New York Gov. Rudolph Giuliani to visit, although the date has not been finalized, Hughes said.

The New York mayor is scheduled to visit in Dallas on Feb. 11 for a fund-raising event, she said.

"When we learned about that, we invited him to come to Austin to visit our governor and spend the night at the governor's mansion if he can."

The details of a Giuliani visit are being worked out, she added.

Hughes said Bush, who opinion polls indicate is a front-runner among potential candidates for 2000, makes a point to invite fellow GOP leaders to visit at the Governor's Mansion.

He has hosted New Mexico Gov. John Johnson, along with former Texas Gov. Clements.

At least two GOP presidential candidates have spent the night: former Texas Gov. Lamar Alexander and publisher

Forbes.

Blanco monks face charges of indecency with children

BLANCO (AP) — In their flowing black robes and matching hats, the bearded monks of Christ of the Hills Monastery for years were merely a curiosity.

Saying little when they ventured into town to buy groceries or mail letters, the Russian Orthodox monks were a seemingly peaceful sort who lived on a nearby hilltop and welcomed outsiders who came to view a weeping icon of the Virgin Mary.

Lately, though, the monastery's quiet world of worship has been shaken and its relationship with Blanco townspeople strained by an alleged sex scandal involving two monks.

"It is, of course, sad. But we know everything is in God's hands. He permits persecution and things to befall us as he sees fit," said Father Pangratos, a spokesman for the monastery.

Samuel A. Greene Jr., 54, known as Father Benedict, and Jonathan Hitt, 37, known as Father Jeremiah, each have been charged with three counts of indecency with a child allegedly involving a 17-year-old male religious student who lived at Christ of the Hills in the summer of 1997.

The monks will be arraigned Wednesday in Johnson City before state District Judge Gilford Jones, who has issued a gag order in the case. Little has been publicly disclosed about the victim or the details surrounding the accusations.

DeLay attributes charge to 'political enemies'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aides to House Majority Whip Tom DeLay, assailing reporting on the truthfulness of statements made in a civil deposition, on Tuesday filed the controversy to the congressional record as "political enemies."

DeLay himself remained tight-lipped on questions that have been raised in a deposition he gave in 1994 in a case filed against him in Texas by a former partner.

The Texas Republican is among President Clinton's harshest critics in Congress and the first high-ranking GOP leader to call for Clinton's resignation.
