Palmeiro undergoes surgery

ARLINGTON, Texas - Texas Rangers first baseman Rafael Palmeiro underwent surgery Wednesday to repair a slight cartilage tear in his knee.
Palmeiro, who signed a year, $45 million contract to return to Texas after being traded to Baltimore, is believed to have been injured while running stairs as part of a workout last week.

Doctors said he might be limited to a bit of the beginning training, but he should play in exhibition games expected to be ready by the end of the season.

Team orthopedist Conway said the tear in the area of the groove and kneecap slides.
As a left-handed batter, Palmeiro gets his momentum into the ball and right leg. He hit 23 homers and 121 RBIs in 1997.

The Rangers also said that they signed four of the major league prospects: pitchers Demetrius Foss, Ryan Glynn and Johnson and infielder Dransfield.

The team now has terms with 33 of its players.

Hicks eyes ownership of Mavericks

DALLAS (AP) - A former Texas Tech basketball player who already has been a member of the Dallas Stars and the Dallas Mavericks is in a bid to launch a sports network, is still eyeing the Mavericks.
The Dallas Morning Star reported Wednesday that Hicks has been talking to the Dallas Stars and the Dallas Mavericks about buying a piece of the team.

Talks have begun to buy a chunk of Perot's project aimed at creating a commercial and entertainment district around a million downtown buildings built for the Mavericks.
Hicks has been into the Mavericks for years, ever since he bought the team in 1989. On Wednesday Hicks issued a statement downplaying the rumors that he was almost done.

"Speculations about my investment by Dallas Mavericks is just Hicks said. "Ross Perot have had discussions with other investors only natural to examine how we work together in the future."
"However, talks are nary, and I would not further developments for some time."
