ISA hosts annual International Week

BY MEGAN E. WRIGHT
The Battalion

More than 40 international student organizations will participate in International Week 1999 activities to increase awareness of on-campus diversity, beginning with an opening ceremony today at 11:30 a.m. in the MSC Flagroom. The mayors of Bryan and College Station, Tina Watkins, a former director of International Student Services, and Dr. J. Malon Southerland, vice president for student affairs, will be guests at the opening ceremony, which will feature speakers and a presentation of countries' flags. Celebrating its 20th anniversary, International Week is hosted by the International Student Association (ISA) and will feature events today through Friday. Roselynn Regina, vice president of public relations for ISA and a senior industrial engineering major, said the purpose of International Week is to offer students an opportunity to learn more about the countries and cultures represented at Texas A&M. "We have International Week every year," Regina said. "We realized this year is the 20th anniversary, and we wanted to do something different and leave a mark. Because of that, ISA declared this past February International

Month, and we're ending our International Week to celebrate the different peoples that are here. The Cultural Display exhibit artwork and crafting cultures today and on the first floor of the building. According to a press release, International Week started when an A&M student mentioned the idea of a national awareness celebration one-day program that has into a week-long observance. Watkins helped organize the day-long program featured art displays and a show.

Marine Science Society Maclean will speak on the topic of Marine Mammalogy chapter at 7:30 p.m. in room 202. Contact Davilla at 775-2243 for details. Texas A&M Women's Rugby will be practicing from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. in the polo fields behind the Engineering lot. Practices are open to all. No experience necessary. April at 775-4220 for more information.
