Commisioner 'dogged' over comm

DALLAS (AP) — A Smith County commissioner's advice to rural residents plagued by stray dogs has come back to bite him.
 Derrell Cooper has told residents to shoot the animals or leave out a bowl of antifreeze so they can lap up the poison and die.
 "If I go to my mailbox and a dog makes me get in my car, he won't do it but once," Cooper said at a meeting Monday in Tyler.
 His comments have angered other county leaders, residents and animal rights groups. They believe the county should hire animal control officers to humanely round up the thousands of stray dogs and cats that roam the countryside.
 About 45 residents of the East Texas county gathered at the commissioners' meeting Monday to ask for help with the stray dog problem.
 Few expected Cooper's remarks, which prompted gasps and angry responses, said Gayle Helms, executive director of the Smith County Humane Society.
 "To me, that was a... Helms said. "The group assembled to talk about the situation and that is not even close to killing the dogs and capturing them before they die." Helms fears residents' comments are a bad omen for the county's future. She said she would like to see the county find the antifreeze. Cooper did not return phone calls from The Press Tuesday.
